

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

A Resume of Government Happenings in the National Capital

A rash of oratory recently broke out in the senate led by Senators Young, Aiken, Eastland, and Hatch of New Mexico, in defense of the farmer and agricultural prices and a denial that government or the farmer was responsible for the high consumer price of agricultural products.

Said Senator Aiken: "It is my belief that at the present time a well organized campaign to prejudice American consumers against American farmers is being indulged in simply for the purpose of diverting attention from the real profiteers in the food and clothing markets, the speculators and commodity gamblers, and also to prevent farmers and working people from knowing the truth about each other."

that the farmers are responsible for the high prices. I think the facts will show that the cause of the present high prices in industrial goods is the discontinuance of OPA."

Said Senator Young: "The industrialists are trying to put agriculture in a bad light; they are trying to throw out a smoke screen behind which they can hide; they are also trying to destroy the soil-conservation program and all other programs which are needed by the farmers of America. If farm prices are driven down I believe a depression would follow shortly."

Said Senator Aiken: "I have been satisfied all the time that as quickly as that mad leadership of industry in America had settled with labor, had crushed labor, they would turn their attention to American agriculture next."

make the farmers of America responsible for present high prices should succeed, as eventually when times become normal it will succeed, and farm prices go down and down as they have done before, how long will other prices remain where they are and will it not eventually as it always has before, result in depressions and hard times?"

On Friday, May 23, several members of the District Health Department attended a meeting of the Western North Carolina Public Health Association at Lake Lure, N. C. This association consists of public health workers in 29 counties in the mountain section of North Carolina and is a part of the North Carolina Public Health Association, which covers the entire state but meets only once a year and is rather unwieldy because of its large size. The purpose of the smaller district association is to improve public health service in our section of the state as the approach to our problems differs from that in other geographic areas of the state. It is also true that the western district will be better represented in state-wide affairs if it acts as an organizing unit. For a long time there has been a subconscious feeling in the state that the mountain counties were an undeveloped wilderness which could add little to the state revenue and deserved little state aid. This feeling can best be overcome by groups such as the Western North Carolina Public Health Association.

Green Valley School News

The teachers and pupils of Green Valley school are very grateful to members of the Home Demonstration Club for the delightful party given on the school grounds last Friday afternoon. Sandwiches, cookies, candy and lemonade were served by Mesdames Wade Clawson, Arlie Moretz, Howard Gragg and David Martin.

On Friday night the children of the school presented a variety program. The rooms were open for inspection and some work of the children was displayed and the various talents were demonstrated in the program.

Little Miss Ann Cottrell, Arville Miller, Robert Proffitt and Vaughn Tugman furnished additional musical numbers.

In spite of much sickness and bad weather, the attendance has been commendable this year. However, Lois Norris, of the third grade, has the distinction of being the only pupil in the school with a perfect attendance record.

FATHER FINDS DAUGHTER AFTER 22 YEARS APART

YOUR TRI-COUNTY Health Department By DR. ROBERT R. KING, JR. District Health Officer

Olean, N. Y.—A chance telephone call reunited a South Carolina girl, Miss Lorraine Ellis Ashley, with her father, Fred W. Ellis of Olean, after a separation of 22 years. The girl's mother died in the flu epidemic in 1918. Lorraine, just one month old, was adopted by another family when her father almost died from the same disease. Ellis, now a retired mail carrier, lost track of his daughter when she and her foster parents moved to South Carolina in 1924. Neither knew the other was alive until a friend of the daughter, who worked as a telephone supervisor in James Island, near Charleston, put in a call to Olean. The Olean operator reported a telephone listed for Ellis, letters were exchanged, and the girl came here for a reunion.

Price resistance is reported on the increase in United States.

Attending the meeting from this district were: Mrs. Cleo Reeves of Sparta, Mrs. J. C. Jackson of Jefferson, Mr. Wade E. Eller of Warrensville, Mr. Jack D. Cobb of Boone and Dr. Robert R. King, Jr. of Boone. Workers from the 29 other counties in this district were also present.

During the morning the group was addressed by Dr. Ernest M. Branch, division of oral hygiene, state board of health, Raleigh, whose address pointed out the ways in which public health could most benefit school children.

During the afternoon the members of the association met in groups representing the different fields of public health activities. These groups were health officers, sanitarians, nurses, health educators, clerks, and epidemiologist. Each of these groups discussed problems common to its field of activity, and as usual there was a general give and take of ideas. The next meeting of this type will be held in Waynesville in October.

FORD'S OUT FRONT with two great engines

Both with these BIG FORD features!

Fewer Engine Revolutions Per Turn of the Wheels

Yes, both SIX and V-8 have slower engine speeds than any other cars in their price range. The car "hustles" while the engine "loafs" for best economy, longer life!

4-Ring Pistons

Among the many V-8 features you get in the Ford SIX engine are light-weight aluminum pistons, with 4 oil-saving rings.

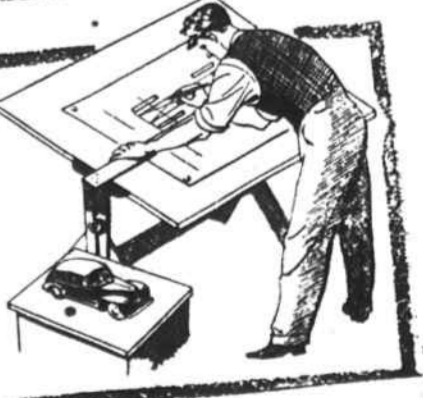

Balanced Carburetion

In both the modern SIX and famous V-8 you get new balanced downdraft carburetion, dual automatic spark control and super power combustion chambers—for performance and thrift!

Ford "50 year" Engineering

The Ford SIX is the only six-cylinder engine with the same basic engineering features as the V-8. No matter which Ford engine you select, the rest of the car is exactly the same.
