(Continued from page 1) tal, skilled labor, transportation, and adequate power. Faith in future is lacking in some instances, he said, but with the four prime factors, and abundant natural resources, it is difficult not to view the future with optimism.

The former governor was introduced by former State Senator Grady Farthing.

Joe Hardin stated that he had investigated the proposed airfield at the Neal Blair farm, and believes that it can be developed for the use of small craft.

W. R. Winkler stated that plans are about complete for entertaining the Park Commission, of which he is a member, next Monday, and the commerce groupers voted the funds for the entertainment of the group.

James C. Coad of Raleigh, and Mr. Dameron of the locker freezer plant, made brief remarks.

REPAYS KINDNESSES

Kansas City, Kan.—More than 30 years ago, Fred Haynes, then a railroad man, helped a young immigrant woman from Austria with her financial problems in a restaurant she operated, assisting with tax and banking problems because she could not read or write English. The woman, Mrs. Katy Grisnik, died recently at the age of 52, and left Haynes, now a deputy in the county clerk's office, a legacy of $18,000 because of his "loyal friendship and services."

Hybrid Corn Tests Conducted for Area At Ashe Co. Farm

The farmers of Ashe county and other nearby counties have within their easy reach one of the official variety test of the North Carolina Crop Improvement Association conducted for the testing of corn hybrids.

The official variety tests are conducted in different sections of the state, chosen to represent variations in climate, soils and prevalence of insects.

The purpose of the test is to assemble information as to which of the commercially available varieties or hybrids are most satisfactory for use in different sections of North Carolina, which recent developments of agricultural experiment stations or commercial plant breeders may satisfactorily replace varieties or hybrids now in commercial production, and the relative mass of commercially available corn hybrid which are required by law to be tested the year preceding the time they are offered or exposed for sale within various sections of the state.

The tests in Ashe county are located on the upper mountain experiment station farm near Transou, N. C. Information as to how to reach the tests can be secured from the county agent's office for Ashe county at Jefferson, or from J. H. Graham, director of the upper mountain experiment station, Laurel Springs, N. C.

Visitors to the plot will find that one replication of the test for corn hybrids has been labeled so that the varieties can be observed as they are growing in the field under growing conditions similar to those which the farmers of this section of the state will have on their own farm.

Visitors to the hybrid corn test plot will find 36 different hybrids on tests. These include not only the hybrids which the farmers are now growing and also some of the newer hybrids which the experiment station is checking and have not released. Included are the commercial varieties which the farmers of the state are now growing which are entered by the plant breeders of the commercial concerns.

In the management of the test fields, the cultural practices are similar to the practices normally used by the farmers of the section for their general farm program. Planting and harvesting is under the direct supervision of a representative of the agricultural experiment station.

Results of the official variety tests are published each year in the bulletin called "Measured Crop Performance," copies of which can be secured from the office of F. H. Jeter, agricultural editor, State College extension service, Raleigh, N. C.

685 Students Enter Cove Creek School

The Cove Creek school opened Sept. 2 with a total enrollment of 685. The high school enrollment is 235 students and 100 in the 8th grade, making a total of 335 students in the high school building. Both the high and elementary school lunch rooms are in operation. Due to decreased appropriation for lunch rooms by the federal government, students will furnish their own milk this year. The regular price of 15 cents is charged for plate lunches.

A number of teachers from the Cove Creek faculty attended summer school this past summer. Miss Jennie Love attended the second term at A. S. T. C. where she studied in the field of Library Science. Mrs. Council Henson, formerly Miss Mary Elizabeth Greer, attended Radford College summer school. Mrs. Mattie L. Wilson attended school at A. S. T. C. Mrs. Gladys M. Bingham of the elementary school faculty attended Columbia University.

Principal S. F. Horton worked during the summer with the State Board of Education on the school bus route survey. Miss Cynthia Stiles worked with the Girl Scouts at Roaring Gap, and Mrs. V. D. Strother supervised the Handicrafts Center in Boone during the summer school session at A. S. T. C.

The faculty and students regret the fact that the following teachers have resigned: Miss Blanche Stokes and Mrs. Robert Hayes of the 6th and 4th grades and Mrs. H. K. Middleton of the 8th grade. We are glad to welcome into the faculty this year, Mrs. Paul Walsh and Mrs. Albert Henson.

Eleven of the students of Cove Creek played on the American Legion baseball team during the past summer and made excellent records. They are Ray Ward, Jimmy Mast, Carlock Greene, Sherman Bingham, J. D. Younce, Blaine Wilson, Oscar Harmon, Pat Mast, Cecil Ward, Jack Combs and Cannon Ward.

Football practice has begun with 25 boys reporting. The first game is scheduled for Sept. 19, where we hope to avenge our defeat of our initial game last year. Cranberry is again our first opponent and the game will be played at Cove Creek. Mr. R. G. Shipley, president of the local unit N. C. E. A. attended a leaders conference in Salisbury Friday and Saturday of last week.
