New! Pittsburgh's One-Coat Oil Base Wallhide WALL PAINT

Not a Water Paint - Not a Powder Paint
Not a Substitute - Not as Good, But Far Better Than Pre-War Quality.

Wallhide is a real oil-base—a Vitolized Oil-base—paint. The use of Vitolized oil results in controlled penetration. Instead of soaking into the surface as in the case of ordinary wall paints, Vitolized oil stays in the film, to keep it live, tough and elastic. One coat covers any surface, and a Wallhide film cleans easily and withstands repeated washing without marring its beauty. It goes on easily, dries quickly, making possible One Day Painting.

Prices Always Reasonable

Wallhide is available in Flat, Semi-Gloss and Gloss in 34 attractive colors. Drop in and we will tell you more about it. You'll also want a copy of Color Dynamics for the Home. We have a Free copy for you.

Presteline's giant oven—the biggest of them all—holds a 30-lb. turkey with room to spare! And the Presty-matic Automatic Oven Control does your baking or roasting while you spend hours away from your kitchen.

Come in today—let us show you the 21 features that make PRESTELINE the answer to your kitchen needs. Seven of these features are obtainable only in PRESTELINE!

PRESTELINE WELCOMES PRICE REDUCTIONS ON ELECTRIC RANGES

In the public interest we hope that all manufacturers of electric ranges will bring their prices down to meet today's Presteline values.

It is gratifying to see that other appliance manufacturers are finally lining up with Presteline by absorbing all possible increases in wages and material costs, and reducing prices to the public accordingly.

From the very first threat of inflation, this company's pricing policy set an example for the entire appliance industry. For sixteen critical months everything mushroomed that entered into the cost of making and marketing electric ranges. During that period Presteline was the only electric range among the leading brands whose price was not raised. The entire increased cost of doing business was absorbed by this company.

This becomes even more noteworthy when it is considered that during the past two years Presteline has introduced more new features than any other electric range on the market. Such features as a choice of four tops to meet the requirements of every family. The Safety-Top which is acclaimed the most important feature in postwar electric range design. Full 40-inch ranges with ovens larger and therefore more practical than any other nationally-advertised range. The large est storage compartment of them all, equipped with new type rack for kitchen utensils. A broiler-roaster pan with three-position rack. Automatic cookery at four positions—outlet, two ovens, deep-well pressure cooker or surface unit.

No other electric range includes these extra features. Yet in May, 1946, Presteline was 6.6% less in cost to consumers than the average of the the leading electric ranges. In May 1937, Presteline was 13.1% lower. Even considering recent price cuts in the industry, Presteline is today on a par—feature for feature—with the average price of comparable ranges. So Presteline is the one electric range that does not have to reduce prices to be in line.

We pledge Presteline distributors, the retail trade and the public that if costs do not skyrocket further, the present unmatched Presteline values will continue.

A runaway inflation can wreck the country's hopes for the future. Let's all do our share to prevent it.
