

J. R. Brendall Is Given Praise

Reprinted from the Belmont (N. C.) Banner, issue of Wednesday, January 19.

By Donald Hair

"My son is doing fine with college Algebra — thanks to Mr. Brendall," was a recent comment by a parent. The parents, and fellow teachers, as well as students, realize his worth. Mr. J. R. Brendall has found a place in every student's heart in B. H. S. He has torn down the barriers between students and teachers and put himself on an equal level with all of his pupils. He has greatly helped everyone with love problems to bettering himself on the athletic field.

Mr. John Raymond Brendall was born on July 6, 1927, in Boone, North Carolina. He attended Boone Demonstration School for seven years, and then he went to Appalachian High School for four years; here he took eight units of mathematics and also served as assistant coach of the football team.

He entered Appalachian State Teachers College in the fall of 1945. He first started to major in music and physical education, decided he didn't have the talents needed for a music major so he changed to mathematics and physical education. Then he devised the physical education field would be too crowded when he finished so he changed again to mathematics and social studies. Mr. Brendall played two years of varsity football in high school before receiving his nose injury which is his trade-mark to all students. He graduated in the summer of 1949 and took a vacation until the fall math rolled around.

Belmont was exceedingly lucky when Mr. Brendall read the ad in the "Charlotte Observer" — "Mathematics Teacher Wanted—Also Willing To Help Coach Football." Previous to this ad Mr. Brendall had seven offers but none appealed to him as much as the Belmont one.

He thinks there are no better people in the world than the folk in Belmont. He says of them: "I couldn't find a better group of young people if I looked for 199 years."

He is not only a teacher, but he shares in the student's troubles as well as his fun. There is nothing Mr. Brendall wouldn't do for a student if he felt that they really needed it done. He also serves as the coach of the Bantam Basketball team. Aside from his strict Geometry and Algebra II tests his classes are highly interesting and range far and wide, from correcting bad English used by his pupils to discussing the latest sports event. His companionship to pupils young and old have won him a place in the stu-

THIS WEEK IN WASHINGTON

The Senate's small business committee says that small business in the nation is fighting for its life, that inflation already has killed many small firms, and that government had better see to it that the survivors get a fair share of defense contracts.

As a result of several days of testimony, Senator John Sparkman of Alabama and Congressman Wright Patman of Texas chairman, respectively, of the senate and house small business committees, introduced identical bills calling for set-up of a small defense plants corporation with a revolving loan fund of $500,000,000 and a five-member board with more positive authority than was given the similar smaller war plants corporation during World War II. The bill would give the corporation power to assure small business a fair share of business from prime government contractors and at the same time give the corporation power to make contracts with the government and sublet to small businesses.

After more than a year of investigation, the department of agriculture is expected to announce some major reorganization plans to more efficiently and effectively give service to the American farmers. Chief among the reorganization plans, which began when Albert Loveland was under-secretary, and which have been carried on since his resignation by Under-secretary Clarence J. McCormick, is a merging of some of the technical services performed by production and marketing administration in soil conservation, and the soil conservation service itself, with the aim of eliminating some of the overlapping functions at the county level between the two departments. The plan follows somewhat, but not wholly some of the recommendations of the Hoover report.

There is a move underway in connection with price controls, to revive some of the provisions of the Steagall law affecting prices farmers get for their commodities. The Steagall amendments guaranteed to the farmer, if he was called upon to increase his crops a price protection for two years after the war ended.

Approximately 70 percent of President Truman's 71 billion dollar budget will be spent for purposes of military service and international security in 1952. This would leave spending for all other government projects, including non-defense items, about 21 billion dollars.

dent's life in B. H. S. So "Hats off to J. R. Brendall, student-companion and teacher of Belmont High School."

permanent and indefinite appropriations, mostly interest on the national debt, public assistance grants, veterans service and other fixed and continuing charges at $19,034,000,000, compared to $20,100,000,000 for the current fiscal year.

In addition actual appropriations to be requested of congress, including programs for which spending will be spread over several years, will amount to another $23,900,000,000 in new cash and obligational authority. Much of this sum will not be spent until 1953 and will therefore show up in the expenditures budget of that year.

Despite this upswing in government spending, the bureau of the budget analysis shows that in 130 different appropriation items there was a cut of about $5.7 billion below amounts approved by the congress for the same purposes in fiscal year 1951. Some defense items were cut below the 1951 budget, including about $1.3 billion for veterans benefits.

Generally speaking, the congressmen generally approved the President's plan to enact a tax bill to raise some $16 billion more in new taxes on a pay-as-we-go basis.

There is a new battle underway on Capitol Hill on whether to retain the single-package omnibus appropriation bill or to return to the old multiple measure system of financing the government each year. Congressman Clarence Cannon, of Missouri, chairman of the house appropriations committee, who helped pioneer the omnibus bill, is staunchly committed to retain the present plan.

CARD OF THANKS

With humble and compassionate hearts and striving to be submissive to the will of Providence, we sincerely wish to thank our kindly neighbors and the many friends and relatives of the Farthing and Glenn clans, who from points far away and home places nearby, have brought or sent tokens of sympathy to us in the loss of our tender and loving childhood sweetheart, wife, and devoted and self-sacrificing mother. For the loads of beautiful flowers, for the overflowing baskets and parcels of lovingly prepared foods, for the warm hand clasps and friendly pats on the shoulder. You have restored in us the desire to continue the struggle for a richer life in a better world. You have increased our faith and belief in the overall goodness of mankind and in his kinship with his Divine Creator. —B. W. Farthing and children.
