Make Plans When Remodeling

Remodeling without careful planning can be expensive, inconvenient and disheartening.
 It costs nothing to plan and re-plan, and only by careful planning will you be able to have just the type of home you want, says Pauline E. Gordon, State College Extension specialist in housing and house furnishings.
 Remodeling or building is too expensive not to warrant detailed planning of what your family wants. And according to Miss Gordon, family planning is important since the kind of home in which you live helps to develop the personality of all persons living within it.

Long-time planning will save you both money and inconvenience. Plan work on your home that can be done over a period of years and then do some work each year as you have the money to pay for it, suggests Miss Gordon. All of your family will enjoy contributing some labor to cut costs further.

If you're planning more storage space, Miss Gordon advises you to consider wall-to-wall storage. List the articles to be stored in the space allotted, then plan shelf and drawer areas to accommodate them. It's easier to keep house when there is a place to put all the things needed by the family.
 According to Miss Gordon, the most convenient height to reach is from the tip of the fingers to the top of the shoulders. Store articles used most often in this area. Those used less frequently can be placed lower or higher.

Ways To Improve Garden Soils

By ROBERT SCHMIDT
 While we are between crops, in a sense, we should be thinking of ways to improve our garden soils.
 Much needed organic matter may be added through the use of stable manures or summer and fall green crops to be turned under. These materials will make heavy soils easier to work and will give sandy soils a better water-holding capacity and along with that, there is the added fertility.

But what I wish to talk about is soil acidity and the use of lime. Many gardeners do not understand the proper use of lime because they do not know the needs of the individual crops. Also, they do not know how acid their soil is. It is foolish to add lime to soil if you do not know that it needs lime or that the crops to be grown require more lime.

Lime reduces soil acidity. Most vegetable crops will thrive in slightly acid (ph 6 to 6.7) soils but there are a number of them that will not thrive at all in very acid (ph 4.5 to 5.0) soils—these are asparagus, spinach, onions, celery, lettuce, beets, muskmelons, cauliflower, broccoli, parsnips, okra and salsify. Crops such as beans, cucumbers, watermelons, corn, sweet potatoes, Irish potatoes and tomatoes are quite tolerant of very acid soils—in fact, it is desirable for watermelons. It is also desirable to grow Irish potatoes on quite acid soils in order to prevent the development of potato scab, a serious disease which is made worse by liming the soil.

The soil testing laboratory of the N. C. Department of Agriculture, Raleigh, will test your soil free of charge and tell you how much lime to use. That leaves no excuse for not knowing the correct acidity of your soil. Take samples by slicing the soil with a spade or trowel to a depth of four to six inches. This will give you soil from the top as well as lower down. Thoroughly mix and send about one pint to the laboratory. If your garden is large take samples from more than one location. It is possible that your county agent has equipment for making simple soil tests.

A NEW STANDARD
 Rufus—They say that radium always giving off parts of itself and yet it never gets any less.
 Goofus—Is that so? That's the sort of stuff they ought to make money of.

Household Hints For Homemakers

Every summer, after the heat has set in, most of us begin thinking up ways to do house work and stay cool in the process. Short of an air conditioned house, this takes some thought.

If it is possible, have your main meal in the evening, after the house has cooled off several degrees. Choose dishes that require little or no cooking. They will be cooler to eat, as well as cooler to prepare.

The early morning hours are usually comfortable. Do all the cooking you can during this time. Prepare dishes that can be reheated in the evening.

When you are entertaining, try fixing steaks, fish or whatever you choose over charcoal in the yard. Outdoor cooking is becoming more and more popular in the United States. It is a delightful way to have guests to dinner, and a cool way, all in one.

There are many kinds of outdoor cookers on the market. Some are very expensive, some moderately priced and others very inexpensive. Also there are numerous recipe books giving directions for outdoor cooking of almost anything under the sun.

If you have to do your own house cleaning and ironing, try to clean early in the morning and iron at night. This will be a hot job whenever you do it, so the best policy is to keep a "stiff upper lip."

Have cool, loose fitting clothes to work around the house in. These can be made to look attractive and be comfortable as well. This is a basic rule of keeping cool.
