

Phys. Ed Course Is Added Here

One of the courses which is now being taught at Appalachian State Teachers College is a seminar in Physical Education (listed in the catalog as Physical Education 489), which is under the direction of the football coaching staff at the college.

Those who enrolled in the course for credit began their work at the first term opening, June 8, and will continue until the end of the term, July 15.

Head football coach, E. C. Duggins, announces that one of the lecturers who will be visiting the seminar for several sessions after June 20 is Bob Breitenstein of Coral Gables, Florida. Breitenstein, nationally known, is assistant coach at the University of Miami in Coral Gables, and is head backfield coach at that institution. He is on a coaching staff whose team, this past season, won nine games and lost only one. Breitenstein is one of a large group of Florida people who have built homes in the Shulls Mills section of Watauga County near Boone and who live there in the summer time.

If coaches in the area wish to attend one of his lectures in this football seminar, they can get in touch with Coach Duggins at Appalachian State Teachers College.

The seminar is concerned with the organization of the football program, discussions on recent trends in football, practice schedule, football movies, and advance study on the different offensive and defensive formations.

Sale Of Wheat Current Need

"With wheat harvest just around the corner, farmers should think about selling their crop."

That's the advice of John M. Curtis, extension marketing specialist at State College.

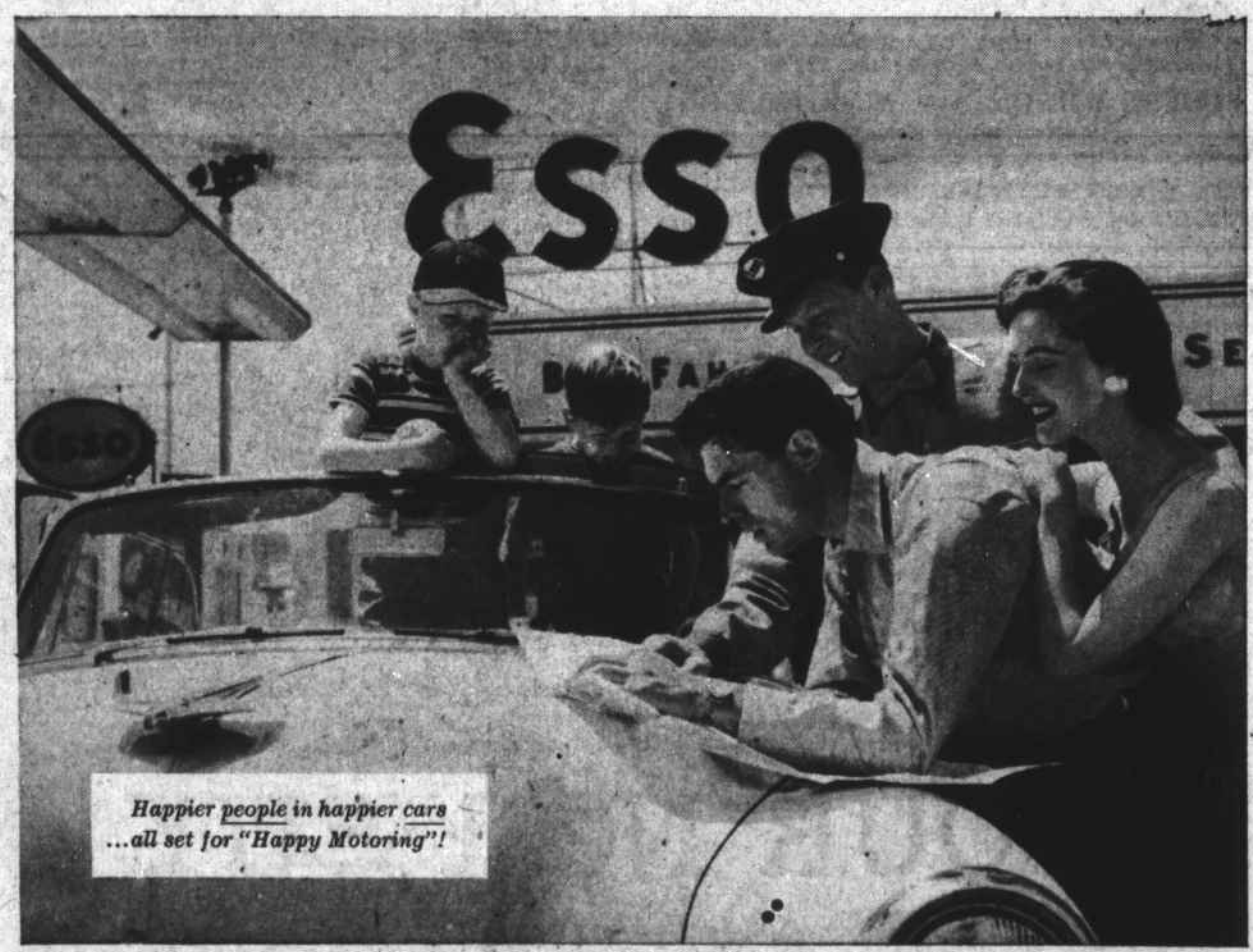

Curtis adds that one of the most important tools in profitable marketing of grain is storage under the price support program.

To qualify for price support loans on the 1955 crop and the re-sealed 1954 crop, wheat must meet minimum requirements of the Federal Pure Food and Drug Administration.

Curtis says that most N. C. wheat growers who have followed storage recommendations in the past will have no trouble with the new regulations. He commented that most farmers have been convinced that good storage is just good business whether the grain is to qualify for the price support program or not.

The average cow last year gave 5,500 pounds of milk. But the record for milk production is 42,805 pounds—nearly eight times the national average.
