Open House At Garden Club

The warmth and wonder of Christmas are welcome anywhere. The greens, the bright ornaments, the shining ribbons, are just as festive in the living room or kitchen as they are on the tree. So, for your pleasure, and to carry the wonderful spirit of the season all through the house, the Apple Blossom Garden Club will have a "Holiday House."

The club members are decorating, and inviting the public to visit, on Thursday, December 8, the home of Mrs. S. V. Tomlinson on Pilson Street. The home will be resplendent in all its Christmas gaiety and the pleasure, as well as ideas, you may receive will be most gratifying.

Tickets, which are sixty cents each, may be purchased from any club member, at Brames' Drug Store, or at the house on December 8. The hours for the "Holiday House" are from two to four in the afternoon and from seven until nine in the evening.

Yule Party Held By Jr. Women

Miss Susan C. Ybanes Is Married To Mr. William Ira Peters III In Florida

MRS. WILLIAM IRA PETERS, III

Miss Susan Corine Ybanes became the bride of Mr. William Ira Peters, III November 26 at 7:30 in the evening at the Plymouth Congregational Church, Coconut Grove, Florida. A reception followed in the church gardens.

The bride's gown was white satin, empire style, embroidered neckline encrusted with pearls. The veil was held by pearl tiara.

The attendants were Mrs. Robert Grady Barrs, formerly Miss Wanda Ruth Horton, in pink over taffeta, as matron of honor. Miss Woodward, in shaded blue net over taffeta, as maid of honor. The bride's bouquet was a cascade of white roses. Her attendants carried cascade bouquets of red roses.

Ringbearer was Master John W. Kennedy, Jr., nephew of the bride. Best man was Mr. Thomas C. Munsell. Ushers were Mr. Gary Christena, Mr. Ray Glenn and Mr. Richard E. Ellington.

Mrs. Peters is a native of Miami. After graduating from Coral Gables High School, she attended private schools in Athens, Greece; was in Europe two years. She is assistant to Ybanes Custom Dresses.

Funds Are Sought For Children's Home

The annual Christmas campaign for funds for the Children's Home Society of North Carolina has begun.

Between now and Dec. 25, those dedicated to helping helpless babies are hopeful that no less than $55,000 pours from all directions into society headquarters at 740 Chestnut St., Greensboro.

To those unfamiliar with the work of the Children's Home Society, campaign workers point out that its goal is to provide a "future" for babies and small children all over the state who otherwise would not enjoy the benefits of a normal home.

Since the Children's Home Society opened its doors 53 years ago, it has provided "futures" for more than 6,000 infants. It did so with voluntary contributions only.

The Christmas campaign is being headed this year by Benjamin Cone, of Greensboro, chairman of the Society's finance committee—whose over-all goal for an operating budget is $163,000.

But right now, the committee is concentrating on the Christmas goal of $55,000. The society, which is non-sectarian and state-wide in scope, receives no tax funds from governmental organizations. Its operating expenses come entirely from the voluntary contributions of public-spirited individuals and organizations.

The average cost for caring for a baby one day is $3.60. Eighteen dollars will provide for a baby's food and clothing one month. For one week, $4.50 is needed. During the past year, 428 children were helped by the Children's Home. The Society also aided 335 mothers who could not care for their children.

The society has headquarters in Greensboro and district offices in Wilmington and Asheville. Staff members also are located in Winston, Durham and Charlotte.

Under the guidance of Miss Harriet Tynes, Executive Director, the Children's Home Society exercises every care in carrying out the work of adoption. Counseling is provided, first of all, for relatives of the babies who may be offered for adoption. Nursing, medical, legal and psychological care is provided for the child itself. And finally, the most careful

Spring Colors Are Envisioned

The five colors which are going to be most popular this coming spring are grayed blue, soft pink, yellow and green and a bisque tone of pale beige. You will see these tones in light-weight jerseys, flannels, broadcloth, wool crepe, and light weight worsteds and silky fleeces.

Another big hit will be crepe and silk print dresses with drapery detail at the tummy line. These are quite a change from the linen and rayon sheath dresses so popular for the last few seasons. They are softer and can be worn by more women with success.

Chiffon scarfs will be floting from double slit pockets in many dresses—designed for morning. Surah silk is more important than ever before. Flattering side-swept draping at the bodice will be good. Gold-metallic fabrics will carry through the spring. Many linen and cotton suits and dresses are using gold trim. One lovely cocktail dress features a full skirt of surah silk and gold metallic cocktail pants showing through the slit skirt which is open from waist to hem. The bodice is fitted and the sleeves are three-fourths dolman design. This is not the type dress most of us will buy but it looks interesting in a fashion show.

Shirtwaist type dress wearers will be happy to know that top designers say that the shirtwaist style will be a big favorite this coming spring and summer. One designer has made a trench coat shirtwaist type dress that is destined for fashion fame. By inverting a pleat in a shirtwaist's sleeve the designer has come up with a new sleeve twist.

Lace is being coupled with nylon marquisette or chiffon for a new look in after-five clothes. The embroidered look will be smart for afternoon and evening clothes. Embroidered linen and failles and
