Short Course Series Started At College

Appalachian State Teachers College opened, on Monday, July 9, the first of a series of short courses and workshops which are being offered this summer to teachers and prospective teachers. 132 students registered for this work. Included in this group were the

Reading workshop, an intensive two-week course devoted to the field of reading, the psychology of reading, the reading program, and diagnostic and remedial measures; Observation in the primary grades, a course planned to help teachers understand the concepts which children derive from the experience of daily living; science in the elementary grades, a course in science for elementary school work; elementary education workshop, an intensive course in elementary education, materials and in the fields of social studies, language arts, and art; alcohol workshop, a two-week workshop on facts about alcohol

A second group of workshops Pulpwood Hits and short courses will begin on July 23, and a third group will begin on August 6. It is possible to earn a maximum of four quarter hours of credit in any two weeks term or workshop, for undergraduate work, and a maximum of three quarter hours of credit for graduate work. Most of the short courses carry either graduate or under graduate credit. The group registering Monday brings the total for the summer to 1475. 581 of these are enrolled in the graduate school. Last year the total for the first term was 1276, with 811 graduate students for the entire summer. Attendance records for all previous summer terms are being broken right along this year.

PRAYER POSTMARK

President Eisenhower recently signed into law a bill providing for a stamp cancellation postmark with the slogan "Pray for Peace." Postmaster General Summerfield has ordered the Post Office Department to move promptly in supplying about 10,000 first and second class post offices with special dies to permit use of such stamp

High In State

Pulpwood production reached a new record high in North Carolina during 1955, says R. S. Douglass, ville, Fla. for the summer months State College extension forestry specialist.

The total harvested increased 10.7 per cent in the South with a Wilson 4.4 per cent increase in the Tar Heel State.

Douglass says that an increase in pulpwood cutting was necessary to supply the demand for paper and other things such as rayon, acetate, and other plastics made of wood

Douglass explains that this trend to more wood use means North Carolina farmers must do a better job of producing timber to assure plentiful supply of material.

BRITISH EXPORTS

While British exports in May earned the record total of $794, 640,000, this still was not enough to meet the import bill. The gap left exports and re-exports was $89,000,000 compared with an average for the previous four months of $153,000,000.
