

Governor Notes Death Educational Leader

The death of Dr. Blandford Barnard Dougherty, founder of Appalachian State Teachers College, at Boone, has removed from the North Carolina scene a great pioneer in public education. Dr. Dougherty devoted his entire life to the development of public education for the children of Western North Carolina. He invested his ability, talents and energies into the lives of thousands of young people from every walk of life.

It is difficult to estimate the many contributions Dr. Dougherty made to the progress, growth and development of Western North Carolina. He was a tower of strength. We are greatly saddened by his passing and extend our sympathies to the members of his family.

Carolina's Drama Time Gets Started In June

By MIRIAM RABB

North Carolina's three big outdoor dramas—"The Lost Colony", "Unto These Hills" and "Horn in the West"—will reopen in late June to play nightly except Mondays through summer.

The three shows are long-run hits which have become almost as much a part of North Carolina's summer scene as the historic seacoast and towering mountain peaks of their vacationland settings. Together, they give the Variety Vacationland State a fixed outdoor drama circuit not duplicated elsewhere. They draw a combined total attendance of over 250,000 each summer.

Each drama tells a story of historical events which took place in the surrounding area, and tells it with music, dancing and elaborate staging as well as with polished acting. They are not pageants, but plays produced on a grand scale in spacious amphitheatres built especially to accommodate them. Each of the theatres seats up to 3,000 people and although it has a secluded site is accessible by paved highways. Free, lighted parking space is provided for the patrons' automobiles.

1957 production dates for the dramas are: "The Lost Colony", Manteo, June 29-September 1; "Unto These Hills", Cherokee, June 25-September 1; and "Horn in the West", Boone, June 28-September 2.

"The Lost Colony", now preparing for its 17th season, was written by Paul Green, the Pulitzer-prize winner, for production in 1937 on Roanoke Island, site of the first English settlements in America. With the exception of three years during World War II, it has played each summer since then and has been seen by over a million people. Roanoke Island was the objective of Sir Walter Raleigh's ill-fated attempts to establish English colonies in the New World in 1585 and 1587, and it was the tragic mystery surrounding the disappearance of the "lost" colony of 1587 which inspired the drama. Land surrounding Waterside Theatre is now Fort Raleigh National Historical Site, where the dwellings of the early colonists and the little earthen fort which guarded them have been restored. Scenes in the drama reenact authenticated events in Elizabethan England and on Roanoke Island, but Playright Green does not attempt to solve the mystery of what happened to the Roanoke Colonists.

The Cherokee Indian Reservation in the Great Smoky Mountains is the home of "Unto These Hills", its cast including descendants of the Cherokee leaders portrayed in the drama. Written by Kermit Hunter of Chapel Hill, "Unto These Hills" is beginning its 8th season as America's box-office champion among outdoor historical dramas. It is produced in Mountainside Theatre at the community of Cherokee, on U. S. 441 near the North Carolina entrance to the Great Smoky Mountains National Park. "Unto These Hills" is the story of the Cherokees' struggle to keep their homes, and the martyrdom of one of their leaders, Tsalali, to permit his people to remain in the Great Smokies rather than be removed to the west across the "trail of tears".

Daniel Boone, who blazed a trail across North Carolina's Blue Ridge Mountains before the Revolutionary War, is the central figure portrayed in "Horn in the West". In this play, Kermit Hunter tells the story of the westward movement of pioneers who carved homes out of the wilderness and defended their freedom in the Battle of Kings Mountain. The drama, which has played every summer since 1932, is staged in the Daniel Boone Theatre at the town of Boone, six miles from the Blue Ridge Parkway in North-western North Carolina.

The dramas are produced by non-profit historical associations and draw much of their direction and talent from the Carolina Playmakers and the University of North Carolina's Department of Dramatic Art, Chapel Hill.

With the delivery of new planes and equipment, the nation's major air freight carriers report increased cargo ton mileage during the first three months of this year and an expected increased sales volume to rise to new heights this year and next. While much freight is carried by air in this country, much of the overseas flying freight comes from carrying animals, textiles, apparel, machinery and parts, electronic equipment and business machines, etc., to cities all over the world.

"We Were Amazed"

THE ABOVE brief clipping tells you worlds about the '57 Buick. It tells you we went all out to make this car completely new—yet we didn't sacrifice a single Buick virtue. So you still get that unmistakable Buick styling. You still get that big-car room and comfort and that solid Buick quality. But you also get so complete a change in the vitals of this car that the driving of it is a wondrous new experience. You get a brilliant brand of performance that's different from anything else that goes on four wheels. Words won't describe it. Telling you there's an all-new engine, an instant new Dynaflo,* a completely new power train—none of that will convey this news to you.

What you have to do is get in this car and drive it. Drive it around the block, through town, out on the highway. Actually feel what happens when you press the gas pedal, turn the steering wheel, touch those powerful new brakes. Then—and not till then—will you know why folks call this "the dream car to drive."

The best advice we can give you, by far, is this: Ask your dealer for a trial run today.

*New Advanced Variable Pitch Dynaflo is the only Dynaflo Buick built today. It is standard on Roadmaster, Super and Century — optional at modest extra cost on the Special. Safety-Buzzer is standard on Roadmaster, optional at extra cost on other Series.

Exclusive With Buick SAFETY-BUZZER* —the "built-in conscience" that buzzes when you reach the miles-per-hour you want to stay under, keeps silent when you drop below that pass.
