Paul said to Mr. Ed:

The pastor of a small church in Scotland was collecting subscriptions for the building of a fence around the church's cemetery. Everyone gave something with the exception of old MacTavish. Later, the pastor asked why he refused.

"We'l," replied Mac, "I don't see any use in a fence around a cemetery. Those that are in there can't get out, and them what's out sure don't want to get in."—Ex.

Funds Being Sought For Scott Memorial

Senator W. Kerr Scott, former governor of North Carolina and past master of N. C. Grange, passed away on April 26, following a heart attack.

After a conference with the members of the Scott family, the executive committee of the N. C. State Grange voted to add a spacious assembly type room to its headquarters building in Greensboro and to designate it as the W. Kerr Scott Memorial.

Scott was commissioner of agriculture for 12 years and in 1940 became the first farm governor of the State in 50 years. Before his term ended in 1952 his "Go Forward" program for better roads, schools, health, rural electrification, and rural telephones had resulted in one of the greatest periods of North Carolina's development.

Governor Scott was elected to the U. S. Senate in 1954, a position which he filled with distinction until his untimely death. His election was by the largest majority ever given a Democratic Senatorial candidate in North Carolina.

Leaders everywhere remember Kerr Scott as a determined and progressive leader of rural people. His entire life was spent on the farm where he came to know and understand farm problems as few men in public life do.

A permanent record is being made of all contributions and a list of contributors will be given to members of the Scott family. Those who would like to give to this memorial fund may do so by contacting Jerry Adams, Sugar Grove, N. C., or mail donation to N. C. Grange, Box H-1, Greensboro, N. C.

Food Center Makes Grand Opening Plan

The Thrift Food Center, a complete local food market, which has been in operation for four months, will observe its formal grand opening this week, says Manager A. E. McCrary.

An advertisement in the Democrat today gives the details of the event, in which thirty food baskets, worth $10 each, will be given away.

Attendance prizes will also be given Thursday, Friday and Saturday, and many special food values have been arranged for the opening event.

Mr. McCrary, Mr. J. L. Noll and Mr. J. H. O'Dell are the owners of the store, which is located in the building formerly occupied by the Black Bear Market.

Mr. McCrary invites the people to visit his store during the grand opening, and points out that free parking is available for one hundred cars.

Lawn Edging Is Made Easier

Lawn edging has been made easy by a narrow strip of metal or plastic inserted in the ground. The result is a barrier to surface and underground growth.

Lawn edging was originally designed to keep turf areas from encroaching on flower and shrub beds. However, now it is being put to many other uses. It is perfect to construct a strawberry pyramid. The layers of soil can be built up as high as six layers.

It is perfect to retain the soil in free-form terracing on gentle slopes. It keeps the lawn in place and the soil from washing away while the grass is taking hold.

Lawn edging can be placed around specimen trees and shrubs to keep a mulch in place or to hold irrigation water.

Try it along garden paths or driveways to keep gravel or pine straw in place, and to keep the weeds out. It will make a perfect divider for sections in seed flats. Use it to mark off a formal garden.

Lawn edging can be bought in your garden supply store. It is sold under many trade names in steel and aluminum metals, and plastics. Almost all types are corrugated for extra strength. The average width is four inches. There are also widths of six to eight inches for southern gardens where a deeper edging is needed to stop the spread of deep grass roots.

Family Cow Is Good Provider

Every month is dairy month, but the industry places special emphasis on June with its June Dairy Month promotion. While the rest of the state and nation are being brought up-to-date on "Ole Bossy's" accomplishments, it's a good time for farmers to think seriously about the benefits of a family milk cow.

L. E. Tuckwiler, Watauga county farm agent for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, says there are some families who fail to get adequate milk for good health. He urges all farm families with the means to purchase abundant dairy products to think about getting a family milk cow as soon as possible. She will provide plenty of good food at low cost.

The farm agent, quoting figures of R. R. Rich, dairy specialist at N. C. State College, said the average annual cost of the family milk cow is only about $140, while she produces about $330 worth of food for the family.

Rich and Tuckwiler suggest that farmers answer the following questions before deciding to buy a cow:

1. Will local health regulations permit owning a cow?
2. Is the family willing to be tied down with the routine of owning a cow?
3. Is there a possibility a boy or a girl in the family could carry on a 4-H dairy project?
4. Can sufficient hay and pasture be provided?
5. Is sufficient money available to purchase the cow, fencing and other equipment needed?

The State Department has announced that all eleven nations invited by President Eisenhower to discuss a new treaty for Antarctica have accepted.

Among the nations transmitting their acceptance of the invitation was the Soviet Union.

Coop Institute At State College

North Carolina State College will be the scene of the first Agricultural Cooperative Institute to be held in the state next month.

Robert S. Boal, marketing specialist for the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service, has announced that the first such institute will be held July 8 through July 11. Meetings will be in the College Union Building.

Boal said that plans for the institute were developed through requests from cooperatives throughout the state. There are now around 400 known cooperatives operating in North Carolina.

Registration will begin in the College Union lobby at 5:30 p. m.

Wednesday, July 9, N. C. State College Chancellor C. H. Bostain and Extension Service Director D. S. Weaver will welcome guests at a banquet in North Ballroom beginning at 6:30.

Regular sessions will get under way the following morning at 9 o'clock following another short registration period for late arrivals.
