WRECK ON 321.—An oil-slick, center of photo, can be seen as result of cracked motor of one of the two cars involved in head-on collision Tuesday night, June 2, near Blowing Rock. Five persons went to the

Five Are Injured In Crash

Five persons were hospitalized last Tuesday evening as a result of a head-on collision near the town limits of Blowing Rock. One remains in critical condition, and is in the Charlotte Memorial Hospital where she was carried for a head operation.

Reports were that a 1954 Oldsmobile, driven by Richard Smith Gilliland, 18, of Lenoir, was headed toward Blowing Rock, when it was met by a 1959 Pontiac, driven by Anthony Gus Emmanuel, of Gastonia. A witness was reported to have stated that neither car appeared to be traveling very fast, but that both cars were in the center of the road. Both vehicles were almost completely demolished.

Marie-Lillian Hensley, of Granite Falls, was a passenger in the center of the Gilliland car. She was the most seriously injured, and after being carried to Blowing Rock Hospital, was later transferred to the Charlotte hospital.

Gilliland was admitted to Caldwell Memorial Hospital in Lenoir, suffering a broken leg and cerebral concussion. The other person in the Oldsmobile was Jimmy Erso Wagner of Lenoir, who suffered a broken arm and cerebral concussion.

Riding with Emmanuel was Janet Smith Ramsey, of Gastonia, who received severe facial injury and a fractured jaw. Emmanuel's injuries were listed as a broken foot, broken ribs and cuts. They were admitted to Blowing Rock Hospital.

The accident, which happened just a few yards south of Blowing Rock town limits on highway 321, occurred around 9:00. The Pontiac convertible had just been purchased about a week before the accident, according to a report, and the Ramsey girl was still on crutches from injuries received in a previous wreck.

Rev. Mr. Hollingsworth Given Chaplaincy At Wake Forest

Winston-Salem.—The Rev. L. H. Hollingsworth, pastor of the First Baptist Church at Boone and president of the General Board of the Baptist State Convention, will be the first full-time chaplain of Wake Forest College.

His appointment was announced eastern Baptist Seminary in Wake Forest. He went to the Boone church in 1952.

He also has held part-time pastorates in Louisiana, at Chunn's Cove Baptist Church in Asheville, at Bethlehem Baptist Church near Raleigh and at White Level Baptist Church near Louisville.

In addition to being president of the General Board, he was a member of the convention's Committee of 25. The committee's proposal for extensive reorganization of the convention were recently adopted at a special convention session.

Ever since man began to record some account of his behavior, he has given a special significance to the "first born." Russia captured for a moment the admiration of the world when she was first to put a satellite in orbit. We often witness a thing which the announcer gleefully describes as a television "first." All of us admire him who is there "fastest with the mostest." Obviously, to be first carries a certain merit all its own.

IRC was the first major industry to be attracted to our Watauga hills. That fact alone warrants special attention and special interest. Community interest, however, does not revolve long upon anything that fails to provide a stimulus for that interest. Why, then, are we of this community visiting special attention through our Chamber of Commerce upon IRC, now some six years old, certainly beyond the novelty stage, and no longer the only industry situated in our neighborhood . . . why?

There are reasons, of course—some of them obvious, others less obvious. IRC—or any industry large or small—takes on a personality beyond its corporate identity. Often it is one which makes a greater impact upon those outside the organization than does the history of its dividend payments, the rise and fall of the market value of its stock, or even the size of its payroll.

This personality springs from the hearts and the minds of people . . . rank and file people . . . top level executives . . . junior executives . . . the boss' wife . . . the night watchman's little girl. It is to this IRC . . . the IRC made up of those we have come to know and to love—the people to whom we go for help, or who come to us for help . . . the people who live down the block . . . or across town, or next door—to this IRC we pay homage, and to them we say, "Viva IRC!"

This does not mean we are unmindful of the beautiful brick plant with its neat, well-kept grounds on the outskirts of Boone. Nor does it mean we are discounting the impact upon our economy of several hundred pay checks each month, nor are we overlooking the rise in tax dollars as more and more IRC employees become home owners. We are ever mindful of—and ever thankful for—these great community assets. Still, it is not to this that we pay tribute.

39th Summer Session Opens At Appalachian

Schedule For First Term Is Outlined

By EARLEEN PRITCHETT

The annual summer session of Appalachian State Teachers College got under way on Tuesday night with the general faculty meeting held in the Fine Arts Auditorium. Dean D. J. Whitener presided.

The welcome was extended by President W. H. Plemmons.

The new and visiting faculty members were introduced by the heads of departments, and brief remarks were made by Dr. James E. Stone, director of the summer session, and Cratis Williams, director of graduate studies.

This is the beginning of the 39th summer session as it is now constituted. From 1904 to 1921 "summer institutes" for teachers were held on the Appalachian campus. In 1921 the summer session began offering work which could be used for study toward a degree or for certification purposes, and since that time the size of the summer session has increased steadily and the influence of the college's summer work has spread throughout the southeastern region.

The fine program offered by the college, coupled with the superb location in the Boone, Blowing Rock, Watauga County area makes it probably superior to any place in the east and it is being discovered by more and more people as the reputation and the influence of the college spread.

The nucleus of the summer faculty is, of course, from the regular college faculty, all highly competent in their fields of specialization. During the summer months this faculty is supplemented by equally competent persons from other colleges, universities, and public school systems throughout the country. For instance, this summer visiting faculty members will be from North Carolina, South Carolina, Florida, Mississippi, Michigan, California, Virginia, Canada, Tennessee, Illinois, Georgia, Ohio, Massachusetts, Delaware, Maryland, and Texas.

The summer of 1958 saw the largest enrollment (more than 2200 individuals) in the history of the college. Indications point to an enrollment equally as large for the 1959 session. In fact, from the number of apartments and rooms reserved on the campus and in the Boone-Blowing Rock area, the indications are that last summer's enrollment may be surpassed.

For the rest of the first term, June 9 through July 17, the calendar includes the following items of interest:

Registration which began June 10 ends on June 15, the day on which all classes must be met for credit.

Convocation for all students and faculty, June 12, 10:30 a. m. in the auditorium of the Health, Physical Education and Recreation Building.

General Faculty meeting, July 14, 3:35 p. m., Auditorium, Fine Arts Building.

The second summer session will begin on July 20.

During the summer, several programs are scheduled to which the public is invited. Among these are:

June 15—The Silver Spurs, 8:00 p. m., College Auditorium.

July 2—Magic in Music, 8:00 p. m., College Auditorium.

July 30—Village Players in "The Four Poster", 8:00 p. m., College Auditorium.

August 13—Gershwin Musicale, 8:00 p. m., College Auditorium.

In addition to the college affairs and campus events, a number of social affairs are planned for the faculty and their families by the college, by departments, by administrative groups, and others.

Hill-Climbers Climb Hills To See The "Hill-Climb"

By RALPH TUGMAN

Accompanied by our friend Hubert Inman, we went to the famous Grandfather Mountain Hill Climb Sunday afternoon. In case you're not already familiar with it, that's a sports car event in which dare-devil drivers defy the steep grade and the hairpin turns in a pell mell rush to the top of Hugh Morton's Grandfather mountain.

We went along for the thrills and breathtaking excitement of the event. We had about all the thrills and breathtaking excitement we could take in a single Sunday afternoon. New we're looking forward to next year, when we plan to go again, and this time we'll try to see the race! Actually, the race of the sports cars up the mountain side is relatively tame competition and a safe pastime in comparison to the keener competition of securing choice viewing spots among the fans. Incidentally, that's a well-chosen word. It's short for fanatics, you know, and while that is not required for viewing the race it is a requisite if one is to obtain a spot on the locations offering the best view.

As you may have guessed by this time, our thrills and breathtaking excitement came in our search of a good viewing position, in a competition with no holds barred, and in a theatre of action that encompassed the whole of the South side of Grandfather Mountain.

Watching carefully for weak spots (everyone on the mountain is an opponent) we spied a young lad with his arm and hand incased in a heavy cast and recognized

Only One Ticket Out On Eve City Voting

So far as the Democrat has been able to determine, the present Mayor and members of the Board of Aldermen will have no opposition when the voters go to the polls next Tuesday in the biennial municipal election.

All the incumbents are Democrats, have long experience at City Hall, and there has been no announcement of any Republican convention, or of any move to field a ticket. Thus opinion at streetside is that the incumbents will have a free ride at the ballot box.

Mayor Gordon H. Winkler is finishing out his fourteenth year, H. J. Cottrell has served six, Grady Tugman, eight, and Wayne Richardson, 4. All were nominated with no opposition at the Democratic convention some time ago.

The polls will open at 6:30 a. m. and close at 6:30 p. m.

Prospects, of course, are for a very light vote, unless, as sometimes happens in the case of an unopposed ticket, a rumor of a write-in campaign gains credence among the voters. It is thought that the chances of this are very remote.

FREACHES IN TAVERN

Chantry, England.—While his new church is being built, the Rev. Alan Morton is holding weekly services in a tavern.

Thos. Taylor Rites Monday

Thomas William Taylor, member of a prominent Watauga family, died at his home at Valle Crucis Saturday morning, after a long period of failing health. He was 59 years old, and a veteran of the first world war.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 o'clock Monday at Valle Crucis Methodist Church by the pastor, Rev. Alvin Wilson, who was assisted in the rites by Rev. Rhet Winters of the Episcopal Church. Burial was in the Mast cemetery.

Survivors are his widow, Mrs. Emma Mast Taylor; two brothers, James Taylor of San Angelo, Tex., and Frank Taylor of Valle Crucis; four sisters, Mrs. Hillery Hobby of Valle Crucis, Mrs. Charles Menzies of Hickory, Mrs. Ralph Phillips of Ingalls and Mrs. Howard Mason of Freehold, N. J.

FARM PRICE-SUPPORTS

A Senate Appropriations subcommittee has approved a $50,000 limit on the total price supports that can go to any one farm or farmer.

The House has passed a similar provision.

Informal opening of Boone's new Golf Course will be held Saturday morning, with Wade Brown, president of Boone Developments, Inc., builders of the course, being the first person to tee off.

This announcement was made Tuesday morning, following a meeting Monday night of the board of directors with the course architect, J. E. Maples.

The course has been under construction for more than a year, and the board felt that it should open to the public as soon as possible. Formal opening date has been set at July 15, and it is expected that many golf notables will be present for that event.

Tee-off time for Mr. Brown has been set for 10:00 Saturday morning.

Officers of the Boone Developments are Mr. Brown, president; Dr. L. H. Owsley, vice president; Dr. C. Ray Lawrence, 2nd vice president; Richard Morhauser, treasurer; Major John H. Thomas, secretary and assistant treasurer; and directors, G. C. Robbins, Jr., Dr. W. H. Plemmons, F. M. Payne, H. J. Cottrell, W. R. Winkler, Estel Wagner, and E. F. Coe.

Joe Maples, son of the architect for the course, has been named professional golfer for the course.

Mr. Maples said that the clubhouse will not be ready for the informal opening, but that temporary provisions will be made for golfers until it is ready, which is expected to be around July 1.

ONE WAY TO DO IT

Newport News, Va.—Three overtime parking tickets, three $1 bills, and a note were in an envelope mailed to Police Lt. Dewey Schanz. The note said: "I have bought my husband a watch."

L. H. HOLLINGSWORTH

Sunday by Wake Forest President Harold W. Tribble. It is expected to be effective around the first of August.

The Rev. Mr. Hollingsworth succeeds Dr. J. Allen Easley, chairman of the department of religion at Wake Forest. Dr. Easley has been acting chaplain since last July when the college announced that it was moving to create a full-time chaplaincy. It also was announced at the same time that a new chaplain would be appointed this summer, allowing Dr. Easley to return to full-time teaching.

A faculty self-study several years ago recommended that the college employ a full-time chaplain.

A native of Greenville, S. C., the Rev. Mr. Hollingsworth was awarded an honorary doctor of divinity degree at Wake Forest during the June 1 graduation exercises.

He attended the New Orleans Theological Seminary and Gardner-Webb Junior College, where he graduated in 1941. He then went to Wake Forest where he graduated in 1943. During World War II he was a chaplain in the South Pacific and was active through two years of combat.

Mr. Hollingsworth became pastor of First Baptist Church at Mebane studied for one year at the South and during his pastorate there he

AHS Summer Term Will Start Monday

McCoy Shop To Open Here

Fred McCoy shop, Boone's newest ladies' fashion store, will hold its formal opening Friday afternoon and evening, according to an announcement of this issue of the Watauga Democrat.

The shop will be under the supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Mock, and will feature "Fine furs, beautiful sports clothes, and carefully coordinated accessories," according to the announcement.

A complete fur service including restyling and storage will be offered. Registration prizes, with a drawing Saturday at 5:30 p. m. will be given in celebration of the opening.

The shop, located in the gray stone building at the corner of King and Hardin streets, will be arranged informally, with an antique motif, and, according to the operators, will invite the public to come in and look around leisurely.

Mrs. Mock has worked for the Fred McCoy stores in Winston-Salem for some time. She had worked for Razooski's in Florida, which has a summer store in Blowing Rock, and has wide acquaintances in this area. Mr. Mock was formerly connected with his father in the Carolina Pharmacy before it was bought by James Greene.

Mr. McCoy has two stores in Winston-Salem, one Downtown and one at the Thruway. He was enthusiastic about the shop in Boone, and issued an invitation for everyone to visit.

House group votes $250,000,000 ship fund.

Appalachian High Summer School will begin Monday, June 15. All students are to report directly to the auditorium at 8:30 a. m. Registration and class assignments will be made at that time.

Students taking a full unit of work will meet classes from 8:30 to 11:30, Monday through Friday, for a period of nine weeks. Students desiring one-half unit of credit may attend the entire nine weeks from 11:30 to 1:00, Monday through Friday, or they may attend from 8:30 to 11:30 for four and a half weeks.

The following courses will be offered during the nine weeks term: English I-IV, American history, world history, Algebra I and II, Plane Geometry, biology, driver training, typing, and Spanish. Other courses will be offered if there is sufficient demand for them.

For each unit taken there is a $7.50 fee. The registration fee is $1, library fee, 50c, typing fee $4.50; and textbooks may be rented for 25c each.

Lacy Veneable will be in charge of the building and will teach history. Miss Kate Peterson will teach English; Verlin Coffey, Spanish; Robert Snead, science; Steve Gabriel, math. Harlan Ledford, commercial subjects; W. Howard Love, driver training; J. Perry Watson, music; and Mrs. Lera Randall, library.

Bus routes have not been completed, and adjustments will be made after Monday, June 15.
