

Greene Buick Is Given Local Pontiac Agency

Greene Buick, Inc. of Boone this week announced the purchase of the Pontiac automobile sales agency from the Barnett Motor Company. The purchase price was not disclosed.

The action, under negotiation for a number of weeks, required the approval of the General Motors Corporation, manufacturers of both automobiles. George C. Greene, Sr., said. Addition of the Pontiac line is a natural step, he said, and is the companion car with Buick dealers in many cities across the country. Actually, adding the new line almost amounted to forming a new company, Mr. Greene said. The firm changed its name to become the Greene Buick-Pontiac, Inc., and under present day business controls such a change involves many corporate problems. For example, the firm's salesmen will now have to be issued new license account numbers, among the other problems growing out of the change.

About Your Home

By FRANCES DELL

The bride entertaining her in-laws at her very first dinner party is quite likely to feel very much at sea. The same thing could apply to her culinary art to a favorite beau.

It is important for any hostess to learn that entertaining can be made simple and it doesn't need to be a big production to be successful. In fact, trying to make a big production of having a few friends in for dinner is the surest way we know to make your guests feel uncomfortable.

There are a few very important pointers that can help things go smoothly:

1. The table cloth must be clean and the glasses and silver should gleam. If at all possible, set the table ahead of time.

2. Try to choose dishes that can be timed to the exact second. Of course, a dish that can be cooked in advance and then heated up is ideal for the hostess with no help. There are entire cookbooks devoted to those types of dishes.

3. For your first dozen or so dinner parties you will find it helpful to make a list of all the things you must do in connection with the party. After a time this routine becomes second nature.

4. The strain of a dinner party without the help of a maid may be helped by serving coffee and dessert in the living room. In this way you can set the dessert tray in advance with plates, cups, and saucers, spoons, cream pitcher, sugar and cigarettes.

5. Empty ash trays occasionally but do not do it noticeably. Keep the conversation going, if necessary, by prodding each guest's interest if time lags. Avoid heated controversy at all costs.

6. Make a last minute check of the bathroom. Have clean towels, soap, and make-up available.

With congenial guests and this list, you can't go wrong. Oh, yes—don't burn the roast!

Questions Homemakers Ask—These timely questions have been asked by many homemakers. Our leading research and home economist specialist gives answers:

My child likes candy very much—how much should I give him? Be sure he is eating food he needs for growth and health before giving him candy. Be sure that the candy does not add more calories than needed.

How does the protein content of peanut butter compare with meat? Four tablespoons of peanut butter supply about the same amount of protein as two ounces (bone).

Which foods are especially important for sound teeth in children? A diet adequate in all nutrients is necessary for formation and maintenance of good teeth.

What is the difference in nutritive values of ice cream and sherbert? Ice cream is prepared largely from milk products and sweetening agents and contains nutrients contributed by these foods. Sherbert is made with fruit or fruit juices, sweetening ingredients, and usually small amounts of milk or egg white.

Which is higher in food value—liver from beef, pork, lamb, or calf? All kinds of liver are excellent sources of good-quality protein, iron, riboflavin, and niacin.

Are frankfurters already cooked? Yes. Frankfurters are fully cooked when purchased and are safe to eat without further heating if you wish to eat them cold.

Garden Time

By M. E. GARDNER

If you lost some of your dahlias during the periods of excessive rainfall last summer, you're not alone. Many were lost. They cannot survive a wet soil for extended periods.

It is best to dig and store the clumps after frost has killed the tops and before freezing weather. Otherwise, you are taking a chance even in Eastern Carolina. Carefully lift the clumps, when the soil is in good condition for digging, cover with peat moss and store in a location well protected from freezing.

If you saved poinsettias plants last Christmas and grew them outside during the summer, they should be brought in the house before frost. Remember that the poinsettia is a short-day plant and should not be exposed to additional light at night.

The Christmas cactus is also a short-day plant and normally blooms in the short days of winter. For this reason it should not receive any more light than that provided by the winter season daylight.

Amaryllis plants should be dried out in order to give them a rest period. I grew one outside last summer and have placed it in the basement. I will not water it again until it is time to bring it into bloom. Early January is a good time to begin watering if you want the plants to bloom in February or early March. It is important that the plant have a rest (dry) period of at least four weeks.

Falling leaves can be a complete nuisance, especially if you have planted grass seed in your lawn. They should be carefully removed, when dry, otherwise they will smother the young seedlings.

In most homes the leafy, or succulent plants, are more satisfactory than the flowering plants because they are less sensitive to temperature and humidity changes. Try the ivies, ferns, philodendrons, peperomias, sansevierias and many others.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Mr. Rivers:

I viewed your paper issued today as a signal contribution to the growth and betterment of Appalachian, hence Watauga County, hence teacher education and public education.

You presented the issues concerning the bond election objectively, forthrightly, and certainly impressively. The successful issuance of the bonds will better man's lot in those areas which seem always in need of support.

Sincerely,
JAMES E. STONE

Blowing Rock School

A Student Cooperative Association was organized at Blowing Rock High School, under the supervision of Mr. E. M. Widener, principal, on October 21.

The SCA is composed of ten high school students including the four class presidents, and six others chosen from the student body.

The officers elected were as follows: Gail Dula, president; Linda Greene, vice president; Cora Holder, secretary; Judy Burns, treasurer; Alice Robbins, reporter; Joe Ford, sergeant at arms.

One of the major aims of this association is to sponsor projects which will bring about development and improvement in the school and student body.

Our first such project is a clean-up campaign. Wednesday, October 28, will be "Clean-up Day." All high school students will work together on this day to improve the building and grounds.

In order to encourage such projects and to keep the school clean, every student will be given a grade each reported period. The class with an average of an "A" at the end of the year, will attend a free movie.

This being the first such organization in the school, we hope that with the support of the faculty, and the community, it will be a very successful movement.

Religious Education Week This past week, October 18-23 was called Religious Education Week, at Blowing Rock School. A chapel assembly was held each day with Dr. Warren Thuston, Presbyterian minister of Hendersonville speaking to the student body. Dr. Thuston also spoke to Mr. Widener's sociology class.

The week was very enlightening and successful for all the young people in the school.
