Health And Beauty

If nothing in your wardrobe looks well on you, the trouble may not be with your clothes. Maybe it is your figure or posture that is to blame.

The first step is to check your weight for your height and age. If you are more than a couple of pounds off one way or the other, here is the place to begin.

You can lose weight without starving yourself. Go at weight-lossing sensibly. Don't starve yourself, keep in mind that it takes time to lose weight. Keep foods like sweets, potato chips, salted peanuts gravies, and soft drinks to a minimum.

For good health, and beauty, eat the following every day: A green and yellow vegetable, two fruits (one citrus), a serving of meat, fish, poultry, or cheese (cheese not on a diet to lose), a pint of milk, a serving of whole-grain cereal or bread, some butter or margarine, six to eight glasses of water, and three to five eggs each week.

If you need to lose weight, take smaller servings; if you need to gain, drink extra milk and eat larger servings.

Check your body measurements. If they need streamlining (this can apply to fat and thin people alike) take exercises. Make sure your posture is what it should be. If necessary, practice correct posture until it becomes natural with you.
