In Fashion Now

There is a fullness about the sew clothes, especially in wool dresses with jackets. Some of the skirts are pleated and, needless to say, it takes a slim person to wear one of the bulky costumes to any advantage.

Pleats in wool have always been a problem to keep in shape, but we hear there is a new process now that puts permanent pleats in woolen skirts. This process was developed in Austria, where wool is so important.

Over-blouses continue to be big news. Not only in knits but in silks, cottons and wools. Some of the over-blouses for suits are practically tunics.

Suits, by the way, are being shown with longer jackets—many of them belted or worn with a sash. Scarves; instead of collars complement many of the suits and coats.
