

Speaking Of Golf

By JOE MAPLES

Entries are already coming in for the Carolinas Open which will be played on the Boone course in just three weeks and interest is really running high. We have received an entry from as far away as Greenville, N. C. and when they come from that far away its unusual.

Ticket sales for the Open will be under the sponsorship of the Boone Rotary Club and admission will be $1.00 per day. The Rotary will receive a portion of the money received from these sales to further the fine civic work they do, so give them all the support you can. They will also have charge of the sale of our beautiful program that has much interesting information in it about the tournament, the players and our local area as well. The charge for these will be 50c which is less than they cost to have printed. There will be no admission charge for the Pro-AM which is to be held on Monday June 5.

The sale of advertising in the program has made it possible for us to put on a banquet for the contestants, their wives and members of the press to be held on Tuesday night at the Daniel Boone Inn, and also to have score cards and windshield stickers printed for the players cars.

This coming Monday and Tuesday, there will be a tournament put on by the Ladies Foothill League and we expect a field of over 125 players from all over Western Carolina for this. The course will still be open to play for other players after all the ladies are teed off, which should be no later than 2:00 p. m.

Around 200 invitations, programs and area folders are being mailed out this week to Country Clubs all over North and South Carolina and from these we expect to have a record field of between 175 and 200 players for the Carolinas Open. We are working at full speed in order to get the local course in the best possible condition for this. Members of the Boone club interested in playing in the pro-Am should sign up in the golf shop at once.

Walters Writes Volleyball Rule

Marshall L. Walters, Chairman of the Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation at Appalachian State Teachers College has been appointed Editor of the 1962 Volleyball Guide and Rule Book.

Mr. Walters was a key figure in world volleyball before coming to Boone three years ago and the players and officers here are happy that he has agreed to again become active.

Walters has conducted two national volleyball championships, one in Chicago and another in Springfield, Mass. He has been chief referee for three national tournaments, chairman of the national officials committee, represented the United States in International meetings at Paris and conducted coaches and officials clinics in Europe and Latin America.

His present position will now make him a member of the Executive Committee of the U. S. Volleyball Association, and a member of the rules committee.

All business and publication and writing procedures will be done from Boone.

The national championships are now on at the University of Minnesota, Duluth, Field House.

Lake James Boat Races

Marion.—The seventh running of the Lake James Boat Races, sanctioned by the National Outboard Association and sponsored by Marion Lodge No. 1705, Loyal Order of the Moose, will be held Sunday afternoon, June 11, at the Canal Bridge race course.

The races which are scheduled to start at 2 o'clock, are being held again after an absence of several years. They will feature outstanding professional racers from throughout the southeast who will be competing in five divisions featuring motors and boats capable of speeds up to 75 miles per hour.

INFANT GAS PROTECTORS

Children up to 4 years old may be protected with special equipment being tested by the United States Army Chemical Corps in anticipation of possible chemical and biological warfare.

Col. George D. Rich, deputy assistant director of chemical, biological and radiological defense, OC, DM, Battle Creek, Michigan, said, "The protectors are pup-like devices with a strong aluminum frame along with a vinyl plastic covering. There are two large filter pads similar to civilian mask equipment."

Opinion varied on tax plan on "expenses."

Health and Beauty

A great deal is written about the best way to weight reduction. If you are interested in this subject, you will want to learn about hidden calories.

Did you know that if you would eliminate just one pat of butter each day you could lose more than eight pounds in body weight in one year? If you would eliminate one tablespoon of salad oil per day you could reduce ten pounds during one year.

A good example of hidden calories can be found in the "diet popular" baked potato. The potato itself contains only eighty calories. However, by the time you add one pat of butter the calories double and can hardly be called diet fare.

One tablespoon of gravy contains 100 calories. By the time you fry foods, you need an adding machine to count the calories.

Many of us drop an artificial sweetener in our coffee or tea, then fill the cup with cream. A teaspoon full of sugar contains about sixteen calories. The cream can easily add 80 calories.

Lean roast beef is only twelve percent fat by weight. Lean pork, on the other hand, is fully thirty percent fat.

Some people pad their daily intake of calories by drinking. In this department, it is easy to make weight reduction impossible even on a strict diet. There are 150 calories in one and one-half ounces of whisky, 120 calories in the same amount of gin and 120 calories in an eight-ounce glass of beer.

Keep these bits of information in mind if you want to lose weight or retain your present weight.

WAGE BILL PASSES

President Kennedy's legislative program has been given a tremendous boost by passage of his minimum wage bill.

The Senate approved it resoundingly 64 to 28. The surprise was in the House, which had twice rejected similar measures. The House approved it 230 to 196.

The key to winning Southern support was a series of exemptions. These removed certain cotton-gin employees, tobacco processors, livestock auctioneers and others from coverage.

Rusk forecast new moves to oust Castro.

Blowing Rock Rotarians Hear Address On Schools

Public education in the United States today, and in Watauga County, has progressed to the highest level of effectiveness in the history of our civilization. Everett M. Widener, Jr. told the Blowing Rock Rotary Club Monday evening.

"We have better textbooks, better teachers' manuals, better teaching materials and equipment, better buildings, more qualified teachers than we have ever had before."

"We know more about the world in which we live, more about the human mind and how we learn, more about the fundamental needs of children, more about those things which are essential to successful and happy living; and more about children and how they grow and develop, than we ever have known before."

"Because of these things—the things we have and the things we know—we are challenged today to do the best job of educating our youth that has ever been done. Fortunately in Watauga County we have the best trained teachers of any school system I have ever known. Books, schedules, equipment, and new buildings are important but it is the person who really makes the difference between an effective school and an ineffective school. Our teachers do not teach textbooks, but rather they teach pupils and the teachers are well versed in scientific knowledge about child growth and development. It is a tendency of the poorly trained teacher to rely too heavily on textbooks, on teachers' manuals, on films, and on other equipment, forgetting that none of these things can substitute for careful and thoughtful planning, and good teaching when in the teacher gives a part of himself each day to those who come to him for learning."

"Trends in education have swung from traditionalism to progressivism within our lifetime and now we are on sound footing in the great middle ground of philosophy and methodology in education. We are in a position to utilize the good schools and good teaching. Progressivism is dead today and traditionalism is outmoded."

"Today's schools properly place great emphasis upon the fundamental skills—the three R's. We do not advocate eliminating the struggle of learning in the classroom. It is probably better to wear out than to rust out. Those critics of our schools who say we are neglecting the fundamentals of a sound education are simply ignorant, for they have failed to inform themselves of the facts about the curriculum, textbooks, and teachers of today's schools."

"The task of the public schools always has been to provide the youth of each generation the best and most adequate education possible. That task remains unchanged today."

TO REVISE INFANTRY

The Army Staff has come up with a preliminary plan to revamp the structure of its infantry division in the interest of greater flexibility and tighter command on the battlefield.

This means abandoning the five-battalion concept adopted only five years ago and substituting a structure in which ten infantry and armored battalions could be grouped under three brigade commands in various combinations as the battle situation dictated.

London—Sales of the transparent black nighties have slumped badly in Britain.

Store managers and sales clerks say that the fad of the black nightie is over, and that the manufacturers no longer make them. The popular colors now are yellow and lilac.

British women seem to be convinced that the naughty black nighties is a symbol for naughty girls.

Attends Meeting Belk Managers

Mr. W. W. Chester, Secretary-Treasurer and Manager of Belk's in Boone, will leave Sunday morning, May 19th, to attend the Belk Stores Manager's Convention, which will be held in Southern Pines May 22 to 24.

The Boone store is one of more than four hundred Belk Stores operating in nineteen southeastern states and Puerto Rico. Buying and administrative offices are maintained in Charlotte and New York.

The program at the convention will feature nationally known experts and outstanding speakers within the Belk organization. Outside speakers will include Senator George Smathers from Florida; W. Maxey Jarman, Chairman of the Board of Genesco; Dr. Bernard Smith, New York University School of Retailing; and the Reverend Thomas Haggi, Pastor of the Emerywood Baptist Church, High Point. Some seventy-five Belk Store managers and other personnel will also participate in the program.

Mr. Chester stated that these conventions are the only times when all the managers get together. An informal family atmosphere will prevail and recreational activities have been planned to complement the business phase of the convention.

This convention is a continuation of Belk's constant effort to offer better merchandise at less money, to improve the efficiency of store operation and thus better serve the local community. This year's convention purpose will be "To motivate management to sufficient planning and effort so that each store will reach its maximum potential in the community it serves."

CARD OF THANKS

The family of William Carl Shell wishes to express appreciation to their many friends who sent food and flowers and otherwise contributed to their comfort during their recent bereavement.

Comment On Sports

By PETE FRITOHIE

Washington, D. C.—The New York Yankees are still making smart trades and that has been— for the past fifteen years or more—one of the reasons they are usually up there in the standings at the end of the season.

The latest was at the expense of the Los Angeles Angels. The Yankees got two players who will help the club in Bob Cerv and Tex Clevenger. The Angels got "numbers" and some might help or none might help.

These numbers were Rhyne Duren and Johnny James, pitchers, outfielder LeRoy Thomas and an unnamed outfielder. Duren is a question-mark this year, and after the trade the Yankee front office admitted as much. Not much is known about James and Thomas. And not even the identity of the fourth player is known.

Cerv is an established player, who is a good man to have on the bench. And Tex Clevenger was prized even more by the Yankees than was Cerv. The deal might turn out all right for the Angels but it looks like another time the New York club stole two respected performers for very little.

On the other hand, Cerv and Clevenger are not good enough to give the Yankees the pennant. Clevenger, while good, will not be another Duren—in Duren's best years. And Cerv is mostly insurance.

The Angels, who have looked pretty good at times, since the opening of the season, might get some help from the acquired players over the long run, especially if

DROPS POLL ON COLD WAR

The United States Information Agency has dropped its poll taking abroad on who's winning the cold war, a spokesman said.

The decision on the controversial USIA studies was said to have been made with White House approval.

The spokesman said the agency will continue its secret broader studies on foreign thinking involving the United States.
