Question: Is an unfrozen turkey superior in flavor to a frozen one?

Answer: No—Buy a frozen turkey for best chances of high quality. The frozen bird was processed, frozen at peak of quality and proper freezers hold this quality. A fresh-dressed bird can be several days old before you buy it.

Question: Are picnics really just small meals?

Answer: No—There are only two ways from a hog. Picnics are shoulders and have different muscle structure, tenderness and flavor; therefore, they require longer cooking than hams.
