'South Pacific' Colorful Part Of Appalachian Arts Festival

Other soldiers are Clark Trivette, Elk Park; Terry Owen, Beckley, W. Va.; Bill Blanton, Concord; Eugene Styles, Dillard, Ga.; Aubrey Stone, Davidson; Frank Crow, North Wilkesboro; Dillon Wilson, Sugar Grove; Steve Vaughn, Flat Rock; and Dennis Daugherty, Hickory.

Portraying nurses will be Mary Keever, Statesville; Louise Smith, Lexington; and Julia Martin, Shelby.

Eight dancers and a 12-member chorus round out the cast.

This production will mark the fifth anniversary of the first music-dramatic show presented in conjunction with the "May Festival", which, this year, has been expanded into an "Arts Festival" on the ASTC campus.

It was five years ago, shortly after the new Health, Recreation, and Physical Education building was completed, that the first festival was held here. The idea of bringing student personnel from several departments and agencies together in a common cause originated with Dr. Nicholas Erneston, Mrs. Virginia Wary Linney, Mrs. Graydon Eggers, and Mrs. Joy

Kirchner, members of a newly-formed Spring Festival Committee. A central theme was chosen—that of folk art—and a production selected which carried out this theme. The first show was Kurt Weill's "Down in the Valley", and it was presented in the new physical education building so that the public might become acquainted with the facilities of the new structure.

The following year, Gilbert and Sullivan's "H. M. S. Pinafore" was brought to the stage and was very well received. In the spring of 1960, the theme of the May "show" was "Scenes from Opera", during which a number of operatic excerpts were staged. Last year, the musical organizations—the College Choir and Symphony Orchestra joined forces with the Playcrafters and the Modern Folk Dance groups in bringing to the stage the ever-popular "Oklahoma", also by Rodgers and Hammerstein. Two performances were presented with "full-house attendance."

Scholarship Loans Are Awarded To Teachers

The State Department of Public Instruction has announced the awarding of 625 scholarship loans to prospective teachers for the 1962-63 school year. These awards were made from 1,942 applicants seeking the scholarship loan.

This scholarship loan program enacted by the 1957 Legislature provides scholarship loans annually of $350 each. The program, administered by the State Department of Public Instruction, is designed to increase the teacher supply for the public schools. Each student receiving a scholarship loan must agree to teach one year in the public schools of North Carolina for each year of State help. In making the awards, consideration is given to such factors and circumstances as aptitude, purposefulness, scholarship, character, financial need and areas or subjects in which the demand for teachers is greatest; with priority being given to high school seniors.

ceive the award in the event of declinations by some of the initial 625 recipients.

At present, 1,281 prospective teachers are enrolled in 48 North Carolina colleges as recipients of this financial aid. Three hundred fifty public school teachers currently teaching in North Carolina received aid through this program, with 226 more qualifying to teach at the end of this school term.

During the five years the scholarship loan program has been in operation, there has been an average of more than fourteen hundred applications each year.

The program is administered by Clifton T. Edwards of the Department of Public Instruction.

The tariff structures recently established by the European Common Market provide for a minimum tariff of 13.2 cents per pound of tobacco, with an ad valorem tariff of 28 per cent and a maximum tariff of 17 cents per pound.
