LOSING OUT? . . . North Carolina Baptists may still be 'as numerous as English sparrows", as the late J. M. Broughton phrased it one time, but there is some worry in high places that racial strife may be converting colored Baptists over to Catholicism.

The Baptists are bickering among themselves in scores of their churches throughout North Carolina about what to do about Negroes who are eager to become active members of their flocks.

The problem lies festering. And, when settled in this or that church, is-still unsettled. But the Catholics opened their ols to Negro boys and girls more than five years ago.

. If it were left entirely to the pastors of the churches, many of them would be wholly integrated by snowfall. However, the boards of deacons do not have these same deep-seated convictions and neither do most of the church members. Meantime, the Catholics make

Marse Grant, editor of the vigorous and influential Baptist paper, "Biblical Recorder", reports in the September 28 isuse of a conference he recently attended in these parts. "While Southern Baptists continue to fumble the ball, others are running with it full speed. In a strategic state meeting which the RECORDER editor attended recently, there were 45 people of all faiths in attendance. Fully half of those present were Roman Catholic leaders, although they represent only one per cent of the population of North Carolina. They are now pushing to the front as the saviors of the racial situation. Don't underestimate the effectiveness of their ssing effort." witne

And, point out Baptist lead- is through with all those adjecers in private conversation, don't overlook the fact the don't overlook the fact the Negro knows that John F. Ken-nedy and Robert Kennedy, tried-and-true friends, are Cath-olic to the hone. If the drift continues, the colored people will leave in droves the solid-white Baptist, Methodist, Pres-betaries and Francescherkert byterian, and Episcopal churches and swing to the integrated houses of worshp of the Ro-man Catholic Church.

NO DEAL . . . With tobacco companies being attacked for prices and sigarettes selling for 25 cents a pack—and ever going higher—fag jokes are becoming more popular in leaf-rich North Carolina. We heard one last week about this 90-year-old man a ample, wants to be with the leading tobacco company found out in Tennessee. He had start-ing officials will line up with ed smoking as a boy and was Preyer; another with Dan still a heavy smoker. Well, this Moore; and a third with Dr. was the person they needed to Lake. One of these may not counteract bad cigarette publi- even be a company officer, but television interview. He was carried away with the idea, had never been anywhere, and everything was going well with the plans until he learned he was to go on the air at nine o'clock one morning. Right there he put on the brakes; and they wated to know why. "Well, to tell you the truth", he said, "I don't stop coughing mornings till about twelve."

GREAT SCOTT!... This Dan Union Starts foore of Canton is making friends fast in Eastern North November 1 Carolina, where until a few days ago they didn't know him from a side of sole leather. He has a way with him. The other night at a YDC political pow-wow at Garner, just out from Raleigh, he sidled up to a youngster and asked: "Do you have a Preyer commitment?" The play on words addled the Young Democrat for a moment. He stuttered, but then came back with: "Oh, go jump in the Lake!"

BREWER . . . Somebody asked us recently how Kidd Brewer is holding up while waiting day-by-day the result of his appeal to the U.S. high court his conviction on the great highway signs scandal.

Well, we wouldn't know. Reports say he is in excellent trim, physically and mentally, with good morale. He no doubt of his old sense of humor. He had one of the finest looking horses in Raleigh's big horse show sponsored by the Lions Club here last week.

Name of the Brewer nag: "In fluence Peddler".

AUTOMOTIVE . . . This WPTF radio announcer may just turn into a car before he tives describing the new models. One evening last week after a particularly long-winded and glowing report on the new Chevelle he took a deep breath and said: "My, that's almost enough to make you want to BE a Chevrolet rather than merely buy one."

CHOOSING SIDES . . . With two Democratic candidates for office already announced-we refer now to Mansion-wishers

-and another expected about frost, the big companies in the State will soon start to choose sides. This usually works in this way: This big Northeastern

North Carolina firm, for ex-

They asked him if he could stockholders. The firm is in the some to New York for a special background.

Each will work hard and earnestly for his man and, in the campaign, will make handsome contributions for his particular candidate. In this way, no matter who wins out for Governor, the firm will have a friend in the office. This happens over-and over-again.

ON AID CUTS

President Kennedy recently told American business men that "disastrous cuts by the House in foreign aid funds would damage the country's export trade as well as its securty.

Working Men

Started It ... Working Men Made It Succeed!

The success story of America's Savings and Loan Business has been written by working people. Wage earners in the early 1830's needed a new way to finance home building so they formed the country's first cooperative "building associations." Later in the century, the rapid development of industries and the movement of people to cities created a need for more homes. Thrifty working people turned to Savings and Loan Associations for the solution of their housing problems.

ings and Loan Associations help finance over 1,129,000 homes, create more than 700,000 construction jobs, make possible $2.4 billion in retail sales, pay more than $3 billion in earnings to savers.

Helping working men achieve a better way of life is no longer the pioneering job it was in the 1830s, yet Savings

The Savings and Loan Business has grown hand-in-hand with America's majority . . . the great middle class . . . by fulfilling the basic needs of practical, low-cost home financing and profitable, safe saving. In doing so, it makes significant contributions to everyone. Each year America's 6,300 Savand Loan Associations continue to help more than 45 million people enjoy a greater measure of personal security. As we celebrate the $100 billion growth of this business, the Watauga Savings & Loan Association cordially invites you to visit us this month. Learn how you, too, can prosper through the financial institution created and developed by generations of American workers.

The Watauga Savings & Loan Association has financed 67% of all homes bought or built in Watauga County, during the Association's 42-year history. 4,600 Wataugans have Savings Accounts with us. Our past 4-year growth in assets stands at 97.3%. Our total assets now exceed 10 million dollars.
