

Farm Bureau Notes

Durham — The retired head of North Carolina's 4-H program and an outstanding lady of the state's dairy industry received the N. C. Farm Bureau's 1963 Distinguished Service Award in ceremonies here Monday.

L. R. Harrill of Raleigh and Mrs. F. A. Needham of Alamance County accepted the Bureau's highest honor during a special recognition session at the organization's 26th annual meeting.

Harrill, who served for 37 years at the helm of the 4-H program, was cited for "a virtual lifetime of unselfish service." He retired June 30, but is yet known to millions of rural North Carolina youngsters as "Mister 4-H."

Mrs. Needham, who assists her husband in operating their 329-acre dairy farm, was the first lady in the state to be named to the N. C. Milk Commission. She was appointed early in 1962 by Governor Sanford.

Dr. L. M. Massey of Zebulon, chairman of the Farm Bureau Awards Committee, said in making the presentations that no one "works for the Distinguished Service Award. It is bestowed only upon those rare persons who work unselfishly, untriflingly, and unceasingly for their fellow man, and for a better rural life for all."

Harrill's long association with 4-H began in Buncombe County in 1922, when he became the first county agent hired by the N. C. Agricultural Extension Service to work exclusively with 4-H. He moved to N. C. State College three years later as head of the state's 4-H program. Under his guidance, its membership has grown from 20,000 in 1926 to over 160,000 this year—the largest 4-H program in the nation.

Harrill is a native of Cleveland County and a graduate of N. C. State College. He continues to be active in many civic and service organizations, and has been accorded official recognition on prior occasions for his outstanding contribution to agriculture.

Mrs. Needham, the mother of three, was commended because her "talents and energies have extended her beneficial influence beyond the walls of her home."

In addition to her Milk Commission post and duties on the farm, she serves as a member of the Women's Committee and Dairy Advisory Committee of the N. C. Farm Bureau.

As a charter member of the Alamance County Farm Bureau, she was elected as its first secretary. She has served since 1957 as county treasurer, and has been a member of the county Farm Bureau board of directors for many years.

She has also distinguished herself in her work with Home Demonstration Clubs, 4-H, the Agricultural Advisory Board in her county, and the June Dairy Month Program.

She is a native of Guilford County and a graduate of Woman's College. Her Alamance home is at Rt. 4, Graham.

Lodge Trophy

Howard Cottrell, Past Governor of Boone Moose Lodge No. 1805, poses with the trophy which the lodge recently won as having the highest percentage of the new members in 1963 among North Carolina Moose lodges. The Membership Achievement Trophy was accompanied by a Past Governor's Merit Award, one of five in this district, which the Federal Council of Moose Lodges awarded Cottrell in recognition of his services.

Farm-City Meet

Farm-City meeting should contact one of the following members of the attendance committee at once: J. B. Robinson, Sam Dixon of the First National Bank, Paul Winkler, Bob Allen, or James Marsh.

An extra feature of the event is that it will be a "ladies' night" affair. Attendance is expected to be heavy from the membership of the various civic groups for whom the Farm-City meeting is a yearly highlight—the Garden Club, Chamber of Commerce, and Women's Worthwhile Club. It is conceivable that a record number of persons will attend the meeting.

Master of Ceremonies for the Farm-City meeting will be Dr. J. F. Bozard. The event is jointly sponsored by the Boone Chamber of Commerce and the County Agricultural Extension Service.

Roy Isley will preside over that part of the program devoted to the official installation of officers for the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants Association for the coming year, while presentation of community awards will be made by Jerry Adams.

County Agricultural Agent L. E. Tuckwiller, who is program chairman for the meeting, will recognize out-of-county guests. The presentation of guest speaker Dr. David S. Weaver will be made by Clyde R. Greene.

The Farm-City meeting comes at a most opportune time, since farm harvests are just about completed and merchants are preparing their Christmas sales drives. All interested persons are urged to attend this meeting if they possibly can.

CONGRESS WORKS ON

Congress will stay in operation right up to the start of the 1964 session.
