ECHOES OF THE BLUE RIDGE

Gene Wilson Will Return And Direct Horn Drama

BY HERMAN W. WILCOX
Agreement with Mr. Gene Wilson to return to direct the activities of the cast and present this year's drama, "Horn in the West" has been completed. Cast Signing Up
Mr. Wilson advises that he is having good success in signing a good many of last year's cast. The weak spots in last year's cast are being strengthened.

1966 Script
The script for this season is being reviewed by Mr. Wilson, Dr. Kermit Hunter, and our Production Committee headed by Mr. H. R. Eggers, so as to bring the public a stronger drama with important changes being considered. All indications point to the best presentation in the 15 years history of the drama.

Wilson Attends Tryouts
Mr. Wilson will attend the Southeastern Theatre Conferences representing "Horn in the West" at Chapel Hill March 19 and Richmond, Virginia April 22.
More than a dozen summer theatrical companies producing indoor and outdoor dramas, musicals, and classics will send representatives to screen candidates for acting, dancing, and singing positions in their summer companies.

Actors, Dancers Note
Any actors, dancers or singers who wish to audition at either one of these places, should follow these rules:
Actors, should come to the tryouts prepared to present audition materials of one minute in length.
Dancers, to prepare material, since most choreographers prefer to audition them in small groups, bringing appropriate work-out clothing with them. Singers, should prepare at least two numbers, furnish their own music and where possible make arrangements for an accompanist with whom they have practiced.

Anyone in this area who wishes to audition for a possible position in "Horn in the West" should immediately contact Audition Committee, Southeastern Theatre Conference, care Institute of Outdoor Drama, University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, N. C.

WITH HORN LONG TIME—Gene Wilson who will direct the Horn this year for the fourth season. He has been with the drama since its beginning, and is presently associate director of speech and drama at Wisconsin State University.

Sanford's New Book To Tell Of State's Progress

Because of the state's revolutionary educational program, prison populations in North Carolina have decreased steadily for several years with fewer and fewer inmates returning. So says Terry Sanford, former governor of the state, in a new book, "But What About The People?" to be published by Harper & Row on Feb. 16.
Sanford attributes the lowered crime rate largely to the stepped-up education program launched throughout North Carolina in 1960. Geared to individual needs, it has kept youths interested in learning instead of drifting into trouble, has straightened out delinquents already in correctional institutions, and has reached into the prisons to train criminals in new vocations.
By law, any prisoner unable to read or write must attend the prison school.
"Even the rudimentary skill of learning to sign one's name is a substantial step toward correcting the maladjustment that led to prison," Gov. Sanford states.
Women prisoners, he points out, afford a particularly heartening example of the effectiveness of such schools.

Cove Creek Baptists Finish New Sanctuary

The building was erected under the supervision of the committee of Jerry Adams, chairman; Mrs. Dave Mast and Mrs. Robert Banner. Rev. L. A. Talbert is the pastor.

Hirohito's son-in-law dies in bar girl's flat.

Father Smith is district chairman; Stanley Harris, district finance committee chairman; and Paul Campbell, leadership training chairman.
