C. and the restored colonial gardens of Williamsburg, Va., along with several others in our own land, were described.

The interest and enjoyment of participating in gardening strengthens distinctive character traits and talents, and satisfy more needs than any other group activity. Working together with our Creator in the good earth makes better, happier, and more devout human beings. Each spring brings new miracles with surprises and new adventures to the gardener. Lower are God's photograph and if we live with them and absorb their beauty, we absorb God."
