Paul W. Casey

High Point — Paul Wadsworth Casey, known to hundreds of furniture men throughout the United States when he was general manager of the Southern Furniture Exposition Building here, died Friday at High Point Memorial Hospital after a brief illness. Deceased was well known in Boone, where he had attended college.

Casey was affiliated with the furniture marketing building here for a number of years before and after World War II. In this capacity he came to know many manufacturers and retailers of furniture who came together here.

He watched the furniture marketing center grow from a small beginning to the many expansions that have taken place in recent years. Failing health made it necessary for him to give up his work as manager and secretary-treasurer of the exposition building several years ago.

In recent years he had been a manufacturer's agent. He lived at the Elwood Hotel here.

At one time he was president of the High Point Rotary Club in which he took an active interest. He and a brother, Silas, are remembered by many oldtimers for their roles as minstrels in Rotary Club-sponsored community shows.

He was born in Wilkes County to James Henry and Sarah Myers Casey.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Edwin D. Taylor of High Point and Mrs. Lynwood Weaver of Martinsville, Va., and three brothers, Silas B. Casey of High Point, John W. Casey of Cyle and Dr. Robert P. Casey of North Wilkesboro.

Highway Entrance Improved

Remember driving south on Faculty Street, and peering up onto Highway 105 to see when you could drive on? No more. Last week, the Highway Commission elevated the entrance, putting it on the same level as 105.

The southern end of Faculty Street also is more accessible from the Highway, since the entrance is wider and the view therefore less obstructed. (Staff photo)
