Six Inches Tuesday's Snow Closes Schools

Traffic Goes Normally As Roads Cleared

An early Tuesday morning snowfall deposited about six inches to keep the children home from school, to make the sentimental wonder if some will be saved to fall on Christmas day, and to bring delight to those who are all ready for some skiing at the fine slopes hereabouts.

Temperatures were a little below freezing when it began to snow, and by daylight State highway workers were throwing their weight against the accumulation, and the youngsters were reveling at the pronouncement that there would be no school in the county. It was also reported that the Ashe county schools were closed.

Travel on the main highways was not interfered with, since by the time the commuters began their trip to work, road scrapers and salt solution had cleared the traffic lanes and with continuing moderate temperatures the prospect was favoring rain, if precipitation continued.

Youngsters are waxing their sled runners and ski lodges are preparing for the capacity crowds which will be coming to the hills when there is sustained snow fall, or when there's enough cold weather to make snow manufacturing practical.

Schools Close Next Wednesday

The office of the Watauga County Board of Education announces all County elementary schools and Watauga High School will be dismissed the afternoon of Wednesday, Dec. 21, for the observance of Christmas.
