

"Learning By Doing" Theme Of CSM Workshop Held At Berea

Berea, Ky.—"Learning by Doing" is the emphasis in Berea this week for about 25 enrollees in the Workshop in Community Action sponsored by the Council of the Southern Mountains.

The trainees are both professional and non-professional employees representing six community action agencies and other interested groups in Kentucky, Tennessee and Georgia.

Training of these local community action agency staff members of CSM's Community Action Technician Project.

The workshop coordinator, Larry M. Greathouse, is being assisted by other CSM staff, by community leaders in Clay and Harlan counties, Ky., and by consultants with experience in manpower, legal services, and community organization.

Participants in the one-week workshop, which began Sunday are being housed on the Berea College campus except for Tuesday and Wednesday, August 22, 23, which was to be spent in field trips to Clay and Harlan counties in Kentucky.

The goal of the field trips is to give trainees a chance to experience in two days the step-by-step process of community action. This process may cover a two-year time span when they duplicate it in their home communities.

The trainees were separated into four groups, each of which visited a different community or hollow. Each group had a CSM staff member as leader and was accompanied by a community leader, a person who lives in the area they visited. This leader oriented them to the community.

In moving through the community action process, they were to talk with poor people, learn their problems, identify a common problem and decide how the community might solve the problem. They also were to observe several projects, such as community centers, that represent the final step of the process.

Back in Berea, the participants will relate their field experience to three specific projects, discussing how these may be developed through the community action process. These projects will be manpower programs, legal services for the poor, and organization of an effective board of directors.

Open Horse Show Is Back At State Fair

An open horse show as a featured event of the North Carolina State Fair is being made a part of the daily program of free events for the 100th Fair which runs the week of October 9-14. Since the first State Fair was held in 1853, horse events have been a feature of the Fair's Program. Harness racing, which without pari-mutuel betting, has failed to draw in recent years, was dropped from the program last year. An RCA Rodeo was added several years ago as an exciting entertainment which has proved very popular here. A one day pony show will be continued as a part of the new program.

The last major shows of horses were held in 1925 and 1926 while Mrs. George W. Vanderbilt was president of the state's Agricultural Society which owned and operated State Fair from 1853 through 1936.

This year, halter classes for registered stock will be shown each morning, beginning at 8:30. During the afternoon the performance classes will be judged. The following schedule will be followed: Monday, Oct. 9, American Saddlebreds and Tennessee Walkers; Tuesday, Arabians, Half-Arabs and Morgans;

Wednesday, Thoroughbreds and Hunters; Thursday, Ponies-Shetlands and Welsh; Friday, Quarter Horses and Appaloosas; Saturday, Youth Fitting and Showmanship and Performance show with major emphasis on rider rather than mount.

With each class filled there will be 14 halter classes in the nine breeds or groups working for three money awards and five ribbons.
