FREEMAN ONSCHOOL LUNCH Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman has called for a nationwide drive to extend the government-sponsored school lunch program to 30 million children not now being shouser Jr. Executive vice-president is Dr. Ray Lawrence; vice-president, Alfred Adams; secretary, Mrs. Ear-leen Pritchett; treasurer, Stan-ley Harris; and legal representative, Wade E. Brown.

Nominations were made by Stanley Harris Sr. (chairman) and Mrs. B. W. Stallings and O, K. Richardson, Presiding in the absence of Dr. Lawrence, Adams sug-gested that the officers meet at noon Monday at the Chalet Restaurant to name the committee chairmen who will make up the executive committee.

Holshouser said he had received an inquiry from the assistant State Auditor about the Association's rent debt to the Town of Boone. Rent of $1,000 a year is to be paid to the Town for the lease of municipal property on which the Association's historical outdoor drama is staged summerly.

Holshouser said he understood that the Association is $7,500 behind in its payments and suggested depositing rent due for this year and sending along installments as the money is available.

Herman W. Wilcox, manager of the drama, said he had been waiting to see about the proposed canteen-rehearsal hall, which would cost $8,000 or $10,-000. He said he had not understood that a lease agreement between the Association and the Town existed.

Holshouser said that when the property was sold to the town, the lessors were responsible to the new owner. Mrs. Pritchett said the matter must be cleared up, if the Association expects request a State appropriation. The matter was held up for further considpersons symbolic of all great individuals who have built such institutions.

The men, all deceased, were described as the true "fathers" of Appalachian by State Treasurer Edwin Gill, who was the speaker for the dedication ceremonies attended by several members of the Bowie, Hoey, Lovill and White families.

These fine buildings are being named in memory of the four men who, in different ways and in different times, aided Appalachian so greatly," said Gill, "Each served in an individual and unique manner. We are united in our memories by their integrity, and by their loyalty to Appalachian.

'They were men who denied the need of labels such as liberals, conservatives, radicals, and reactionaries," Gill con-"They possessed the tinued. common sense, the knowledge, and the leadership which is needed so much in these days

Presenting responses for the families were Carter L. Redd Jr., of Columbia, S. C. (Bowie's grandson); Clyde R. Hoey Jr., of Canton; Mrs. Joan Lovill Tolbert of Misenheimer Tolbert (Lovill's great-granddaughter); and R. Bruce White Jr., of

"If my father could be here today, he would be most pleased at the amazing growth of Appalachian," Hoey stated. "Nothing would have pleased my father more than this dedication," White said. "It provides all of us with great pride, and a sense of belonging and being.

Redd and Mrs. Tolbert, on behalf of the Bowie and Lovill Is Named For families, expressed their appreciation "to all those persons who have bestowed this honor on our family." Dr. W. H. Plemmons, ASU

President, said that "we pledge our efforts in continuing the great contribution of these four men. As long as there is an Appalachian, there Bowie, Hoey, Lovill and White buildings on its campus.

Following the program, which was attended by several members of the university's Board of Trustees and friends of the honored men, the families toured the high-rise residence halls which house a total of 1,100 students.

Bowie Hall for men is a ninestory structure. Hoey, Lovill and White Halls are sister buildings either seven or eight stories in height. The four buildings, constructed at a total
