

100 Art Pieces Are Collected By Girl Scouts

Girl Scouts of Watauga County collected nearly 100 pieces of art Monday from only one county school to be represented in the sidewalk art exhibit Saturday.

Mrs. Kay Bosworth, Girl Scout leader, said a request had come from Valle Crucis School to enter sculpture and that other art work will include finger painting, crayon, water colors, oils, tempa and other mediums. The entry deadline has passed.

Cadette Scouts from throughout the Catawba Valley Girl Scout Council will come to Boone this weekend to see the project, which is being conducted by Miss Mary Ellis Gibson. The exhibit will be on the lawn of the Daniel Boone Hotel from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. Saturday. In case of rain, the show will be moved onto the hotel porch.

Warren Dennis, art professor at ASU, will judge the entries.

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT EMPLOYEES put down the black-top on a section of the highway between Blowing Rock and Lenoir. The heavily-traveled road is being widened to three lanes at several points in order to relieve auto-truck congestion.

The District Highway Office in Boone says one three-lane section now is completed, a second is 85 per cent complete and they will be ready to start on a third in the next few days. (Staff photo)

Microcard Series Bought At ASU

A new microcard series which includes the complete text of every book, pamphlet and broadside printed in the United States in the years 1639 through 1800 has been purchased by the Appalachian State University Library.

Containing more than 42,000 titles, the series, "Early American Imprints," was purchased for $10,000 through a federal acquisitions grant which the ASU Library has received for the last three years.

A second series of the imprints which covers the years 1801 through 1819 is currently in production. "Appalachian is purchasing the second set as the cards become available," said Richard Barker, assistant librarian. "We will eventually have everything produced by American presses during roughly the first two centuries of native printing—about 1,000,000 titles in all, he added. Prepared by the American Antiquarian Society, the series is composed of photographs of the original printed material which has been collected from libraries and private collections throughout America and Europe. The photographs have been tremendously reduced in size and printed on microcards. A "microcard reader" machine in the library magnifies the material to regular page size.

"The series is expensive," Barker commented, "but the materials are invaluable to any research institution."

Harper's Magazine Tells Of Progress In Watauga

According to an article in the October issue of Harper's Magazine Watauga County has made remarkable economic progress during the past five years.

The comment appeared in an article on the Appalachian Regional Commission written by Contributing Editor John Fischer in his column "The Easy Chair." Watauga County was cited, along with Greenville, S.C., as an area of the Appalachian Region where the tide of out migration has been reversed: "A case in point is Watauga County, North Carolina, until recently one of the poorest counties in the nation. In the decade before 1960 it lost nearly 10 per cent of its population. Since that date, however, it has gained more than 11 per cent, and in the last five years the number of jobs in the County has tripled. Here a fast-growing tourist industry is mainly responsible for the turnaround."

Mr. Fischer notes that out migration from North Carolina to northern cities is ending, for while "folks are still moving away from the mountains and coastal plain" they are now "settling inside the state in the thriving industrial towns of the Piedmont."

Mr. Fischer is highly complimentary of the work being done by the Appalachian Regional Commission, and concludes that "the nation's investment in Appalachia is beginning to pay off."

Health And Beauty

It has long been known that your emotions affect your health and looks. All of us know that an exciting idea can pull one out of fatigue and revitalize one. On the other hand, boredom can make a person feel absolutely exhausted.

Take your responsibilities seriously, but not too seriously. If you do take problems and responsibilities too seriously you may have gotten into the habit of keeping your problems with you all the time. Although you may not think consciously of them, they pop into your head several times during the day. This will make you sleep poorly at night and even show in the tensions in the muscles of your body.

Learn to enjoy the beauty of nature. It is all around you, and if money is one of your problems, the song of a bird or the beauty of a sunset is free for all to enjoy. Get out in the open as much as you can. Sunshine and fresh air will do wonders for you.

If you have trouble sleeping at night, try taking a really hard, long hike; you will probably find you will be so tired at night getting sleep will no longer be a problem.
