

on Opens Store Here

W. W. Sutton announces the opening of his new drug store in the new building on Broad street, building formerly occupied by the Sutton Daily News, near the Taylor street. The new store will feature high class merchandise and a specialty of curb service. Sutton moved his equipment from Durham. The front of the building has been changed and the interior decorated to make an attractive drug store.

Mr. Sutton a number of years ago was in business here with J. W. Davis, operating the Sutton and Davis drug store, which is now operated as Leggett & Davis. Mr. Sutton sold out his interest here and went in business at Chapel Hill, later adding a store in Durham. He is a Chowan County man and has many friends who appear glad that he has returned home.

Mr. Sutton urges everybody to drop in and inspect his new store when it is completed.

What an ideal spot for the festivities. The gathering sat in a circle in the shade of the oaks, from the branches which hung nature's ornament graceful moss. Some of the ladies in lively mood, sang old-time songs. All well knew that dinner was main attraction of the day and when they marched to the table they found it loaded with delicious food prepared by many hands. After the invitation by Frank Cale, the crowd did not find dinner full just. It is the desire that the reunion be long remembered, and that younger generation will carry memories to a ripe old age.

Two Local Stores To Increase Floor Space

The Dixon building on the northeast corner of Broad and King street will be remodeled in order to provide more room for S. Ganderson & Sons and the A. and P. grocery store, which front on Broad street. The part of the building which was occupied by Pugh Roberson's barber shop will be added to the two stores, thus adding about 30 feet to each store room. Both of the firms are cramped for room in their present quarters, and the addition of space will allow a larger stock and better display of the merchandise.
