

URGE FALL PLANS FOR NEW HOUSES

Present Repair Drive to Be Followed By Intensive Building Program In Spring

While the new building feature of the National Housing Act—that portion embracing the insurance of mortgages and establishment of national mortgage associations—probably will not become operative before the early part of next year, the Federal Housing Administration is actively engaged in laying the groundwork for this broad program. Administration officials are urging those contemplating new work to consult with architects and builders this fall.

A family building a house must have in cash at least 20 per cent of the total value of the house and land, or the equivalent in land, which is owned free and clear. Mortgage loans made on new and existing homes, to be approved for insurance, are limited to a maximum of $16,000 representing not more than 80 per cent of the appraised value. They are to be amortized over a period of not more than 20 years.
