THIS WEEK'S BIBLE THOUGHT

YE WILL REAP WHAT YE SOW: Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting. And let us not be weary in well doing; for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not.—Galatians 6:7-9.

BOY SCOUTS SHOULD BE REORGANIZED

We notice that the Ed Bond Post of the American Legion and the Rotary Club are discussing the possibility of reorganizing the Edenton Boy Scouts. This is a worthy endeavor, and the Herald hopes it can be accomplished.
 The fact is, we see no reason why the troop has failed to function. It is an excellent organization for growing boys, and with proper supervision could result in great good among the boys.

Edenton is especially fortunate in having a beautiful Scout cabin, which was donated by Mr. J. A. Woodard. This cabin is a credit to the town and should be an incentive for boys to join the organization. It provides an excellent meeting place, as well as the best possible place for the various functions connected with scoutcraft.

The Herald hopes the Boy Scouts will be reorganized, and offers to cooperate in any way to bring it about.

MUCH CREDIT DUE COACH HENRY HOUSE

All Edenton is proud of the record thus far made by Coach Henry House and his Edenton High School football team. Mr. House, in his second year as coach, has built up the most successful football team that ever represented the high school, defeating all comers and not allowing a score to be made against them. This is saying a great deal, because in former years good football teams were produced, but none ever made a record comparable to this year's achievement. The team has won the North-eastern Conference championship and next will play in the semi-finals for the Class B championship of North Carolina.

What reflects greater credit upon the ability of Mr. House to produce a good football team is the fact that he has built up a wonderful aggregation from a handful of material, all of which is composed of boys with ordinary football talent. Teams in former years invariably had a few outstanding players, but as is the case in football a team is just as strong as the weakest player. We would not minimize the ability of the Spencer Brothers, the tackling of Spruill and the punting of Rogerson, but what we're driving at is the fact that the boys play as a unit, and work hard to win a game, regardless of who receives the glory for making the touchdowns.

This sort of spirit surely must have been the result of coaching, and has resulted in the team winning the championship of this section.

We congratulate the boys, as well as Mr. House in what has been accomplished and hope we'll be able to refer to them as the champion Class B team in North Carolina.

COOPERATIVES SERVE IN MANY WAYS

Some of the most important activities of progressive farm cooperatives deal with problems not directly related to the buying and selling of agricultural commodities.

These problems include such matters as monetary policies, tariffs, commodity prices and all manner of government legislation. The farmer, in common with all other producers and workers, is vitally affected by national and international economic trends and policies. His farm, so far as this is concerned, is no different from a bank, a service industry, a life insurance company, or any other institution—in the long run, he will fail or succeed to the same degree as other endeavors, here and abroad, fail and succeed.

The great farm co-ops have given the farmer something he cannot obtain for himself as an individual—experts who work to make his influence, his wishes and his interest felt. In doing that, they have been extremely successful—farm leaders have been called in during the writing of important legislation of various kinds, and the completed bills contain valuable features that they suggested.

Thus, the farm co-op serves in many ways—and the thousands of progressive farmers who make successful cooperative associations possible are building a better future.

HEARD AND SEEN

By "BUFF"

Well, the big day is over—and if Edenton was "cocky" before last Friday, the Elizabeth City Yellow Jackets will have to get their second wind and try again. Fact of the matter is, the Edenton Aces might have reason to be "cocky" now, inasmuch as they gave the Jackets a worse beating than had been anticipated. Of course, we've heard the alibi—17 football players were graduated last year. But even at that the Elizabeth City school has much more material to draw from—in fact they had enough men on the field in uniform Friday to have three teams. The white goat on the gridiron didn't belong to Edenton—it was Elizabeth City's goat, and we came near getting it. Anyway, it was a good game, and although we've shoved Elizabeth out of the running, here's hoping they "pull" for the Aces in bringing the championship back to the Albemarle. They ought to—they've trimmed us often enough.

One of my country friends who done his courting possibly 50 years ago, noticed one of our dolted up young things the other day on Broad street. "You know," said he, "I'd be afraid to kiss a girl nowadays unless I was near a doctor's office." I didn't see what he was driving at, and inquired why. "Because," he said, "I'd get painter's colic sure as you're born." I told him some of the paint is flavored now, but he claimed he liked the good old natural taste.

Motorists ought not keep their windows so clean. Lloyd Burton the other night while dishing out drinks to a party in an automobile tried to shove the tray through the window and as a result spilled some of the beverages. The window was so clean that Friend Burton thought the thing was turned down. Shucks, I thought courting couples wanted shaded windows, but another fellow told me that when they get ready to court now they don't care who sees them.

A local fellow the other day had a check, and remarked that he had spent all the money he had except said check. "Well, why don't you cash it," asked a friend. And the answer came back, "It isn't old enough." Hows zat!

One of our good-hearted ladies while riding around, met up with a man on his way home, and very kindly offered to drive him home. He accepted the invitation, and upon getting out of the car, asked the lady to come in and have supper with the family. "No, thank you," said the lady, "I'm real hungry tonight."

I'm glad Halloween is over. Of course, there was no rowdiness in Edenton, but the streets were littered with little tots and some older ones masquerading. But what gets my goat is that I put on my Sunday suit and upon strolling down Broad street, some guy had the audacity to say to me: "That's a mighty comical costume you've got on tonight, Buff." I couldn't reach his nose!

I just had to print George Lassiter's poem elsewhere in these columns. I asked him about the spelling of some of the words. "It's a poet's privilege to change the spelling of words," he said. Well, maybe it is, but if any words are not spelled correctly in this paper—that's a printer's privilege.

Little tots can't help but stopping and looking in the window of Leggett & Davis Drug Store. This firm is again this year giving away substantial toys to those children receiving the highest number of votes given on purchases. And gosh ding, maybe some of the daddies wouldn't mind playing with the toys themselves.

Bill collectors are making their monthly pilgrimage. Hope all are not in my fix—I'll be "on my feet" pretty soon now. That is if I don't soon have the shoes half-soled.

John Sutton doesn't see much difference in the times. He says he didn't have anything B. D. (before depression) and that he hasn't nary a thing now.

The town and community is all placarded with signs advertising the Chowan Agricultural Fair, and it looks like old times again. It is expected that large crowds will attend. Those desiring to place exhibits in the fair are asked to get in touch with those in charge immediately.

The Herald fell down on results from advertising last week. C. N. Griffin lost a large belt from a peanut picker on the way to Paul Bunch's farm. He inserted a want ad in the Herald, but the belt hasn't been returned—and the chances are that it will not be returned, especially if the finder don't want to. Anyway, Mr. Griffin would like to have the belt back.

A farmer from the Rocky Hock section was in the office the other day and complained that country folks were about to starve and that there is too much red tape to get high to get 12 cents a pound on cotton. But by gosh in reading over our correspondence from the country, I see where many of them have So and So as dinner guests. Looks like some of them must have a little to eat yet.

While officials were pouring confiscated whiskey down the sewer in front of the court house Friday I was reminded of the song mentioned some time ago by Roy Emminger, "Shall We Gather at the River?" I didn't see anybody gathering, however. Maybe that wasn't all the liquor in Edenton!

Sunday was another bad day for Methodists. It sprinkled again, and although they believe in sprinkling, many remained home from Sunday School and church. Ed Habit thinks they ought to go to church, rain or not—he'll clean and press the suits. And so will Friend Oglesby.

The High School football team tackles Hertford Friday afternoon. A few years ago Hertford whipped the Edenton team, and reports from there are to the effect that they'll give Edenton a hard fight. Coach Hughes is drilling his boys, for the contest, and a good game is expected. The affair will be played in Hertford, starting at 2:30 o'clock. Let's stick by our boys, and go along to Hertford and bring home the bacon. Hertford isn't in the conference, but let's see if Edenton can hold them scoreless.

I saw in a New Bern paper that Harry Jacobs and a number of Baptist leaders are real public enemies, from a chicken's view point. According to the paper, after all the preachers and leaders were through with breast meat and drum sticks, barn yards of the vicinity looked pretty barren. The paper also says, "When a thousand Baptists get together at one time, you can dig out an old umbrella, for rain ain't camping far behind."

Jno. C. Bond Company will give away free to the person holding the lucky number a beautiful Aladdin lamp. Some of these lamps are on display in their window. Have a look when you're down town. Maybe you can win one. With two stores now giving away something free, I've got my eye on all windows, in the hope that somebody will give away a pair of breeches or a pair of shoes.

WHAT OTHER EDITORS SAY

EXILE

Judges frequently condemn a person who has been found guilty of some crime to exile from the city or state in which the crime was committed. The News and Observer of Raleigh does not think highly of such procedure. If, reasons the Observer, the man was not guilty he should be set free and if he was guilty he should not be sent to become a menace to some other innocent community. Editor Beasley of the Monroe Journal thinks that there can be no general rule made about it but that every case must be handled separately. He recalls some instances in which the change of environment has helped the exiles to live better lives. Our idea is that judges have made too free use of the exile penalty. That is especially true of city court judges. Too often men and women are run out of one city only to go to the neighboring city to carry on their nefarious lives. A city judge, however, has a problem on his hand. Every city is afflicted with a number of undesirables and it takes a Solomon to know best how to handle them. Exile is not a solution, for as fast as the judge of one city court exiles his bunch, their places are filled by those who have been exiled from the neighboring city. Maybe some of them will get tired of being run out of cities and will decide to straighten up. It is not a simple problem.—Charity and Children.
