WITH THE Rambler

Gone But Not Forgotten

In the course of a person's life there are some happenings and scenes which make an everlasting impression on his mind. Just such happened to me not long ago. I was riding out on the highway and as I passed a farm house a most unusual sight presented itself.

I could not tell whether the NRA or PWA or some other section of the New Deal caused it or not. But in the backyard of this farm house there were two small "buildings." One was made of brand new clean boards.

The other looked as though most of the old boards had been used for firewood during the winter, and there was nothing left but the skeleton of this use-to-be, very useful and necessary small "house."

I have read in the newspapers about how much the government had helped the farmers to improve their living, both in their crop and home situations, but that is the first time I have viewed such an improvement.

The remains of the little old house sat in the background, but still stood out like a monument.

In other words, the house was gone but the frame remained to tell the story. I guess the farmer decided to retain his "reading room" as sort of an antique.

Winner And Loser

Well, predestination, or luck as some call it, played its part in the Indianapolis auto race last week.

Kelly Petillo, who came very near not being able to enter the race due to rules and motor trouble, and who had to borrow all the money he could and had to work day and night fixing his speeder, won the internationally-known speedway thriller. A man has got to have more than confidence to take such a chance. Not only did he take the first prize money but set a new record for the 500 mile grind. His hunch must have been strong in his mind.

And while he was winning, a Cincinnati driver, Weatherly, drove a losing race with death. Weatherly, driving the jinxed, black racer which had killed its driver in the trial run, and was rebuilt, went over one of the walls of the track and was dead when help reached him.

In the history of these races this is the first time that a car which killed its driver, has been repaired and then killed the next man to take

June Suggestions For Orchards And Gardens

Orchardists and vegetable growers consider June an important period in the cultivation and care of garden and fruit crops.

If a good yield is to be obtained, free from rot and other injuries, insects and disease must be controlled, says M. E. Gardner, head of the horticultural department at State College.

Spraying and dusting are particularly important at this time of year, Gardner points out, since it is essential to control insects and disease before they have time to develop.

The spraying or dusting should be done at the right time and with the proper materials. Apply them thoroughly to all parts of the plant.

Calendars showing the recommended spray mixtures for apple and peach trees, and the time to use them may be obtained without cost from the agricultural editor at State College, Raleigh.

Frequent cultivation of the soil will keep down grass and weeds, which rob the soil of moisture and food that should be available for the crops. But do not cultivate too deeply, Gardner warns, as deep cultivation often injures the plant roots.

In June, he adds, succession planting may be made of sweet corn, snap beans, and cowpeas. Tomato seed may be planted for a late crop.

Pleasing the housewife is a big factor in the sale of fruits and vegetables, he says. A clean, well prepared product of standard grade will do much to solve the marketing problem.

it around the curves. There is bound to be a jinx in the black racing job.

Speed

Auto racing is not the only form of fast sport which is attracting wide attention. The Princeton University cinder path will view four of the fastest milers in the business within the next week or so.

Glenn Cunningham, present king, with a time of 4:07.6 leads the "Big Four." At his heels are Jack Lovelock, the English marvel; Bill Bonthron, former Princeton miler; and Gene Venke, University of Pennsylvania ace.

The stamina, speed and want to win of these tracksters will excite the track fans gathered at Princeton and cause the old record to tremble with fear.

Perhaps the fourth greatest American miler, Williamson, is a member of the Southern Conference and State champion, the University of North Carolina.

Still In Print

In this era of speed, airflow and airstream, you can still read of W. O. Saunders' trip to New York some years ago and his sensational stroll up Park Avenue attired in pajamas, necktie, cane and Panama.

Picking up a Baltimore paper I saw "W. O.'s" picture in the above attire, and with it, a story which stated that many scientists and doctors claim people should wear more "airflow" clothes during the summer—for health and comfort.

In some towns, though, it is not exactly healthy to be seen on the streets in such, and the jails are not very comfortable.

Max Vs Jimmy

The heavyweight championship battle, which calls for the champion, Max Baer to defend his title against James Braddock, is going to be a real battle. Baer, who has not done much ring training until lately and has spent his time filling up exhibition fight halls and night club tables, does not talk so enthusiastic about winning while Braddock, who has improved unbelievably in the last two years, is very confident.

Old Maxie still looks like a champion for a while longer but Braddock has evidently tamed some of Baer's "self-respect."

This is the first time Baer has ever admitted his opponent was "good."

Here are THE questions you should ask before you buy an Electric Refrigerator.

How many heat units will the compressor remove per watt of current consumed? (You would ask how many miles to the gallon your new car would give — wouldn't you?) That's Economy!	What is the N. E. M. A. rating of the compressor in ice melting effect. (You would ask the horsepower of your new car, wouldn't you—to know if it would take the hills in high?) That's Hot Weather Performance!	What is the speed of the compressor? (Does it run so fast that it will shake itself to pieces in a short time?) That's Long Trouble-Free Service!

SAFETY ZONE REFRIGERATOR

... is built like an ice-making machine. Where ice is manufactured to be sold at a profit, the machinery must make ice quickly, economically and with low upkeep costs. Ice-making machines must have capacity. The Stewart-Warner twin cylinder has a rating of 155 I. M. E. Ice machines are slow speed, belt driven. The Stewart-Warner twin cylinder is belt driven at only 375 R. P. M. Ice machines must make ice quickly and with low current consumption.

The Stewart-Warner removes an average of 3 HEAT UNITS FOR EVERY WATT OF CURRENT CONSUMED. This is a current saving of 33 1-3 over the average unit by actual test. Remember: The PRICE of an article is the amount you pay to possess it. The COST of an article is its price plus the expense of its ownership.
