

STATE FAIR HAILED BEST IN HISTORY

Annual Exhibition Opens In Raleigh On Monday, October 14; Large Crowds Expected

North Carolina's annual State Fair, hailed this year as the finest, best balanced exposition in history, will open Monday, October 14, with a week-long program of festivities and revelry in store for its thousands of visitors.

Exhibition halls customarily bulging with blue ribbon exhibits will again be jammed to overflowing with choice North Carolina livestock, farm and home displays and countless other contenders for a share of the $11,600 offered in premiums. Competition will be limited to North Carolina exhibitors.

Talent recruited from all parts of America and remote corners of the world as well will vie for applause in an all-star array of entertainment features. Heading the grandstand attractions will be the gay Broadway musical hit, Gertrude Avery's Diamond Revue of 1935, a 75-people musical extravaganza to be staged each night. The revue, coming to Raleigh from major northern expositions in two 70-foot baggage cars, will be augmented by 15 circus and hippodrome acts and climaxed each night by a brilliant fireworks show.

Harness horse racing for purses totalling $1,800 will begin Wednesday and continue through the Thursday and Friday matinees. More than 150 of America's speediest trotters and pacers will be seen in action.

Other matinee headliners include B. Ward Beam's International Congress of Daredevils, 22 thrill artists who engage in head-on collisions, delayed parachute plunges from 5,000 feet, races between chariots careening behind motorcycles and a dozen other thrillers Tuesday afternoon; and a seven event program of A. A. A. championship auto races Saturday. The World of Mirth Shows, America's largest touring midway, will provide the carnival attractions.

15-YEAR-OLD A. H. KERR IS YOUNGEST U. N. C. ATHLETE
Chapel Hill, N. C.—The youngest fellow out for athletics at the University of North Carolina is A. H. Kerr, a freshman. He is only 15 years old and hails from a North Carolina town of his own name. Kerr is out for fall baseball practice. He weighs 155 and stands 5 feet 11. Incidentally he wears No. 10's.

Tobacco Growers Can Boost Market Prices

Tobacco growers themselves can do a great deal to boost weed prices this season, said E. Y. Floyd, extension tobacco specialist at N. C. State College.

The first thing, he said, is to keep off the market all scrap tobacco and all lower grades which bring less than six cents a pound.

Heavy offerings of inferior and scrap leaf tend to glut the market and depress prices, he pointed out. Furthermore, a pound of scrap counts just as much on the allotment card as a pound of good tobacco.

Since tobacco is a good fertilizer, Floyd stated, growers will find it advantageous to save their scrap for fertilizing purposes. A ton of weed contains 86.8 pounds of nitrogen, 10 pounds of phosphoric acid, and 114.8 pounds of potash.

But he warned against the use of tobacco to fertilize fields on which tobacco is to be grown next year, as in some cases diseases would be carried over to infect the new crop.

After the growers have sold all their leaf that will bring more than six cents a pound, they should take the unused part of their allotment cards, if any is left, to their county agents, who will try to sell it at the rate of four cents a pound.

This would give the growers four cents a pound for the unused part of their cards and at the same time allow them to keep their inferior weed at home.

However, Floyd pointed out, contract signers whose allotments were neither raised nor lowered this year are due to receive deficiency payments in the event that they fail to produce the full amount of their allotment.

These growers should consult their county agents before selling any part of their cards, as they might lose more than they would gain. The agents will explain why, Floyd added.

RAMBLING WITH THE RAMBLER

voted Sharkey as their champion after Schmeling refused to fight the sailor in 1931—although Schmeling was still champ according to decision of the National Boxing Association.

In 1932 Jack Sharkey defeated the German and gained the undisputed championship. Then in 1933, the giant Italian, Primo Carnera, became the champion by beating Sharkey. Max Baer followed and put Carnera out of top position in 1934, only to be decided over by James J. Braddock this year.

And now with young Joe Louis, the sensation of the ring, on his hunt for Braddock, it looks like the Negro will settle the heavyweight scramble for a few years anyhow. And so it goes—up and down, but seldom down and up again.

Cheer Leaders Take Note

In order for the Edenton Aces to put all they've got in the game, they have to have plenty of rooters to urge them on. Here's where the cheer leaders come in. Keith MacDonald, University of Washington yell king, says that in order to be a good leader of yells one has to do four things:

1. Keep your back straight.
2. Keep your wrists locked.
3. Keep your arms and legs in line.
4. Never get down on your knees. It gets your white pants dirty.

Now, you cheerleaders of Edenton High, take note. A football team shows just as much fight as their cheering section. Let's give them some real encouragement!

On the Gridiron

Well, what do you think of the football situation now? After viewing Duke's decisive victory over South Carolina last week, the Devils look like they are going to prove a real threat both in the State and Southern championship fights.

Coach Wallace Wade sent in most of his Devils, and still they proved too strong for the Gamecocks. His third team which played most of the fourth quarter rated along with South Carolina first. Looks sorta bad for Washington and Lee, last year Southern Conference winners, who will play Duke this Saturday in Richmond. In my opinion a champion will fall.

But over in Tennessee, where Carolina goes this week-end, things are much tighter. Last year the Vols defeated U. N. C. 19-7, and they are reported to be one of the best teams in the nation this season. This will be Coach Snavelly's hardest game of the season and though he may pull through, I give Tennessee the edge.

The others:
State at South Carolina—Another win for Hunk Anderson's Wolfpack.
Davidson at Virginia—The Virginia team has not done so well this season but should overcome the Wildcats.

Wake Forest at Clemson—An easy victory for the strong Clemson team.

The biggest upset so far, without a doubt was the 7-7 Howard-Alabama tie last Saturday. Coach Thomas evidently misses some of his Rose Bowl stars. And with this tie the South will have to work up another team to do Rose Bowl duty on New Year's Day.

SECURITY

In the heart of every parent lies the hope of a secure future for his family. A comfortable home, a future free from financial worry, adequate provision for education . . . these are the things that he desires above all else.

To make the necessary provision for this security is not always the most difficult part of such a program. The assurance that such provision will continue to provide adequate protection, that it will prove dependable, and that the requirements of his family will always be met, has often proved a greater obstacle to the completion of such plans.

The difficulties involved in such a program are most often overcome by relying upon the services of a good bank. Successful fulfillment of such ambitions in the past through the services of this bank make it the logical place to seek information, to look to for assistance in formulating plans, and for advice. We are always happy to serve in such a capacity.
