Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Goodwin announce the birth of a son on Monday, November 11.

Chowan Club Holds Regular Meeting

In spite of a rainy afternoon an average number of the Chowan Club women met Miss Colwell and Mrs. E. L. Winslow.

The president read the Bible, we said together the Club Collect, and sang "It's a Good Time to Get Together." Roll was called and the minutes of the last demonstration meeting read. Hereafter, by vote of the County Council, a member of the demonstration club must answer to her name four times a year for her name to be kept on the roll.

Mrs. Winslow read a letter regarding our selling Christmas Seals. She promised to write a letter to headquarters about the matter.

It was voted that Mrs. Z. W. Evans pay Mrs. J. N. Pruden $1.00, that our Club join the Red Cross. The room in which we met reminded us of the work the Red Cross does primarily—nursing the sick.

There was before us a bed for a patient and beside it a cot for the nurses. So much for the sick.

For the well, Miss Colwell brought in a box containing table linens, mats and napkins, properly folded, and Christmas articles, mostly needlework, made by Miss Willie Hunter of Raleigh. Then she displayed and explained a swinging shelf made of three wooden quadrants held together by three cords, and separated by three sets of spools, five spools in a set. All painted, it made an attractive Christmas gift. Another noticeable gift was a footstool painted and upholstered with a padded cushion on top.

Directions for table service were given us, and books on the use of new stitches in sewing.

The next meeting will be a combined federated and demonstration one on November 25th. Mrs. W. H. Winborne will give a Citizenship and Public Welfare program in one.

It is good to know, that, rain or shine, a band of faithful women think of the helpfulness asked of them in the Chowan Woman's Club.

These are troublous times, and there are many fields of service.

M. W. WINBORNE.

Garden Club Wants Green Beautified

The Garden Club sent a request to Town Council Tuesday night to remove the cement walk around the circle on the Court House green where the fountain formerly was situated and to continue the cement walk diagonally across the spot. At present pedestrians walk across the grass in the circle and the ladies of the club made the request in order to improve the appearance of the green.

The club likewise recommended the planting of a grass on the green that would improve the appearance, but the Councilmen, in view of the fact that no money had been appropriated in the budget for such expense, tabled the request.

Legionnaires Enjoy Party by Auxiliary

About 75 were present in the Parish House Friday night when the members of Ed Bond Post were guests of the Legion Auxiliary, the occasion proving to be one of the most enjoyable affairs of the season. The rooms were tastefully decorated and the guests were received by the two captains, Red and Blue, who arranged the entire company on two sides to participate in various contests.

There was a shoe contest followed by a baseball test in naming the contestants, a potato race, a pillow race, a bean race, a jug race, balloon race and "Going to Jerusalem." The latter especially caused much merriment as sometimes three would occupy the same chair at the same time. The Red side won in most of the contests and as a reward each member received a candy sucker.

The address of welcome was made by Mrs. Jesse White, president of the Auxiliary, and was responded to by John A. Holmes, commander of Ed Bond Post. Following music and songs, a cafeteria supper was served consisting of country ham, salad, pickles, saltines, sandwiches and hot coffee. The whole affair was a great success and thoroughly enjoyed by each one present.

The program committee consisted of Mrs. J. W. Davis and Mrs. W. D. Pruden, while Mrs. J. Lester Forehand, Mrs. W. W. Byrum, Mrs. J. J. Long and Mrs. Jesse White served on the refreshment committee.

COATES SPEAKS TO ENFORCEMENT MEN

For a few hours last Friday afternoon law enforcement officers from thirteen counties of the Albemarle, probably 65 or 70 of them, gathered here in the last of a series of eight similar conferences held throughout the State by the Institute of Government of Chapel Hill. Under the guidance of Director Albert Coates they told tales of personal heroism, urged a coordination of all State and federal law enforcing bodies, bluffed themselves into believing that, as Mr. Coates put it, "an aroused public opinion" was all that was necessary to make the enforcement of every law supreme, and never said a word about politics occasionally being a stumbling block in their path.

Before they got down to business they had a merry time on the north end of the Court House green where Mayor E. W. Spires had had Fire Chief Dick Hall build a somewhat satisfying reproduction of the "Public Parade" located on the same site several centuries ago. There was a pillory, a ducking stool and a whipping post, put up in emulation of three modes of punishment in the days of Governor Charles Eden. The visitors were photographed standing about the 1935 replicas with Zenith Bright Tucker featured as a common scold and seated in the ducking stool. Representative John Fernando White standing in the pillory unafraid and unashamed and vainly trying to get a cigarette into his mouth, and Harvey Thomas fastened with hidden face to the whipping post while Bob Pratt stood over him with up-raised cat-o-nine tails looking sad because he couldn't apply it with vigor.

The "Public Parade" seemed to make a hit and drew rather steady crowds of town residents all day. Small knots of negroes gathered frequently about it and were heard to express themselves as "Somebody said dat law was coming back." In view of the fact that the reproductions actually got their start out of a talk in Richard Dixon's office a month before, followed by a couple of wholly imaginative articles in the News & Observer, and then to seemingly be forgotten until two days before the conference when Mr. Coates spurred Mayor Spires on with a telephone chat to the effect that he viewed the idea as a good one and hoped it would be carried out, much credit should go to Captain Dick for the quick way he threw the things together almost at the last moment.

Mr. Coates was the principal speaker at the conference urging his auditors to stop passing the buck to each other and instead to pull together in a better law enforcing way. He declared that all law was powerless except an aroused public opinion was behind it, and said that the State's greatest need was to inculcate into the coming generation a need for better citizenship. In this connection he said he hoped the future would see law enforcement made a part of the curricula in the elementary public schools everywhere.

Mayor Spires spoke in welcome to the guests, telling them they were on historic ground in a historic building, and read to them an ancient court order of 1720 sending a criminal of that day to the whipping post for 39 lashes. Others who spoke at the conference were Special Agent G. E. Lowden, of Charlotte, of the federal secret service and this State's chief "G"-man, Lieutenant Lester F. Jones, of Greenville, and identified with the State Highway Patrol, J. W. McMahon, of High Point, and Sheriff J. A. Whitehurst, president of the State Sheriff's Association, of Greenville.
