THREE FAMOUS SMITHS

Year's Highest Football Honors Go to Them.

IT'S never happened before in the entire fifty years since Walter Camp, father of modern football, originated the idea of picking an all-America football team every year. Three men of the same name on the all-America! But that's the way it has come out this year—and the selection is the final and greatest of all the all-Americas—the Collier's team which is a perpetuation of Walter Camp's original and official one. Above is shown a house built with funds obtained from a private lending institution operating under the terms of the Federal Housing Administration's "Single Mortgage System." The house is sturdily constructed, with living room, bedroom, kitchen, nook, and ample closet space on the ground floor. In the basement is a cozy recreation room. The house is heated by an oil-burning furnace supplying hot air under automatic control. The dwelling was built by a young couple as an investment and was rented for a 2-year period even before construction began. The house is located near Cold Creek, famous during the gold-rush days.

Wild Horses of Nevada Doomed for Slaughter

Tonopah, Nev.—Thousands of wild horses that roam the southern Nevada deserts are being rounded up for slaughtering and conversion into fertilizer.

The great number of horses now running wild on the ranges is indirectly blamed upon the automobile.

Old-timers explained that because ranchers and cattlemen through the use of motor vehicles had less and less use for their horses the animals were turned loose on the range to forage for themselves.

These wild animals multiplied until they became a real menace to live-stock growers by depleting the ranges of feed needed for the cattle, especially during the last few years when there has been little rain.

During the last few years thousands of wild horses have been captured and shipped to Pacific coast slaughter houses. The plan of capture is novel.

A high and tight fence is built around water holes, all of the gates being closed except one. Forced by thirst to enter the open gate, the horses are locked in as they enter. Then they are East Tawas, Mich.—Huron National forest promises to be a mecca for bow and arrow hunters from now on. Announcement that the establishment of this area as a bow and arrow hunting refuge has received the necessary approval of Regional Forester Tinker was made recently by Warren T. All firearms will be excluded from the approximately 6,500 acres comprising this forest unit, but bow and arrow hunters may hunt deer and rabbits during the respective open seasons on these animals.
