

RAMBLING WITH THE Rambler

By "LITTLE BUFF"

Take It Away, General!

Dear Rambler: No doubt you have been wondering where I have been and what I have been doing and also why I never got down to your section of the United States.

Well, my friend, 'tis a long and sad tale of woe and hard luck. Nothing but trouble has followed me since I started my journey to your fair metropolis. But the mishaps came like torrents of rain for the last two months.

Right after I wrote to you last I had some slight financial difficulties and had to look around for a dollar or so to continue my trip. Well, I happened to land a job of refereeing football games in a tough mill town. I should have known that there was something phoney about the whole setup when I was offered 25 bucks to referee one game. But I needed the dough, so I overlooked the possibilities. I went out to the football field for the game over which I was to officiate, and looked the two teams over. Whew! They looked like two mobs getting ready to wage war, and not with a football, either. But I still acted game and thought I could handle the situation. Really, Rambler, I got along like a veteran for about a quarter—then hell broke loose. If the boys, beg pardon, I meant men, had ever known the rules and regulations of football, they cast them aside and began carrying their mates off the field.

I happened to stay out of the melee until just before the half ended. The Gunners had formed a wedge and were starting down the field when I ran up in front of them to explain that this form of offense was against the rules. Well, that's as far as I got. That wedge went over me like Sir Malcolm did Daytona Beach. But for some unknown miracle or another, the wedge didn't last long enough and the big fullback was downed this side of their goal line. Well, Sir, the big Jew who ran with the ball had the intestinal fortitude to come back to me and jabber about not scoring and hollering about his bad luck. Boy, that burned me down.

Anyhow, after spending the $25 I made and putting another $75 on the hospital's cuff, I finally was turned loose to care for my broken bones and spirits. No, I didn't spend any more time there. I used "Old Faithful," my trusty right thumb, and travelled on to the next town.

Now, my appetite had not been fully satisfied for weeks and weeks, so I decided to try my luck in a cafe. I ate and worked hard enough, but that was all—no spondee, except a few dollars I got from the Negro cook rollin' sevens. I decided to take a chance at some real money, so I proceeded to pull tip boards. Ending up as almost every other guy who pulls tip boards, I still have no income—in fact, not enough to even buy the stamp for this letter. I hope you didn't mind paying the postage.

As ever,
THE GENERAL.

Be a Sport, Pal

Now, General, you know I wouldn't have minded paying 3 cents for a letter from you, but why did you have to stuff the envelope full of old newspapers and send it special delivery. Of course, it would have cost me even more if you had insured it, so I guess I haven't got so much to kick about after all.

I was glad to hear from you and hope you won't take more than twice as long to write again. By the way, next time, don't send me a book. I can't read.

Polishing Up College Boxing

Rear Admiral Sellers seems to think that boxing at the U. S. Naval Academy should be made more formal, and has issued orders that all attending the Middle's boxing matches be attired in formal dress. And there, readers, you have it. In order to see a Navy boxing team in action at home, you have to get out the old tux or tails and go through as much or more punishment than the fighters. Even before this formal dress rule was made, it was against the rule to applaud or holler during the rounds. The next move will no doubt make it against the rules to give the opponent a bloody nose.

Even now, college boxing is as unexciting as it could possibly be and if other schools make similar laws as to actions and dress during matches, boxing will have to be discontinued. People want action—if they want to dress up like stiff shirts they would perhaps decide to go to the opera instead.

Germany's Olympiad

February 6th will begin another series of international sports competition—with the best of every country of the globe participating.

The 6th is the time set for the start of the Winter Games at Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany. Already the U. S. A. has sent over its outstanding ice skaters, bobsled teams, and other champion winter sportsters.

In spite of anti-Nazi opposition and fanatics screaming religious tolerance and such Germany has prepared well for the greatest Olympiad yet to be held and from reports, competition will prove to be the closest yet.

And So ! ! ! !

N. C. State and Duke seem to have the outstanding basketball quintets of the State this season . . . the University of North Carolina, whose White Phantoms won the Southern conference crown last year, must show great improvement to repeat . . . Maybe the Phantoms miss their old coach, Bo Shepard, who resigned

House Furnishing School At Hotel

A house furnishings leaders school will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the Hotel Joseph Hewes. The instructors for this school will be Miss Gordon, house furnishing specialist, and Miss Mamie Whisnant, assistant furnishing specialist.

This is a new project among the demonstration clubs of Chowan County, being the first school held in the County for this work. All house furnishing leaders of the various clubs are expected to be in attendance, so that the information and instruction can be taken back to their respective clubs. The particular phase of house furnishing to be studied will be floors and floor finishes.
