Lloyd Hobbs Wins Wrestling Match

Lloyd Hobbs, a student at Appalachian College, Boone, N. C., was one of the active pallbearers at the funeral last week of Professor Andrew Martin Norton, beloved professor of English at the teachers' college. Mr. Norton, one of the foremost educators of Western North Carolina, succumbed to a severe heart attack while he was lecturing his English major classes. He was known as "the grand old man of the English Department," and Mr. Hobbs numbered him among his best friends.

Mr. Hobbs is also a member of the school's wrestling team and turned in a victory for his school in a match with the Spray Y. M. C. A. last Monday, winning in the unlimited class in one minute and 50 seconds in an extra period match. Appalachian won the meet 10 to 11.

Taylor Theatre Lines Up Good Program

"Hands Across the Table" at the local theatre today and tonight has been justly called the running mate to "It Happened One Night." It comes to the Taylor as a sparkling up-to-the-minute romantic comedy. Fred MacMurray and Ralph Bellamy are the men Carole Lombard meets in her many amusing efforts to marry.

Saturday brings that banjo picker, Gene Autrey, to the screen in "Melody Trail." He was on the screen here recently in "Tumbling Tumbleweeds" and made such a hit.

Ann Dvorak and Paul Muni are co-starred for Monday and Tuesday in "Dr. Socrates" from W. R. Burnett's sensational novel of the medical outcast who put gangdom on the operating table.

Metro's "The Murder Man" is Wednesday's attraction with Spencer Tracy and Virginia Bruce.

Heating Plant At Theatre Repaired

Though patrons of the Taylor Theatre were somewhat inconvenienced during the early part of the week due to lack of heat, the building is now warm and very comfortable. The cause for lack of sufficient heat was due to a broken water pipe under the building which was repaired as quickly as possible. The management regrets the unavoidable inconvenience and is glad to report that the cause has been remedied.

the farm of Herbert S. Small, was found not guilty.

Probable cause was found against Cecil Jordan, colored, who was charged with assault with a deadly weapon, an automobile, upon J. D. Ward, Jimmie Dail and Charlie Boyce. The three men were injured on Christmas Day when, while walking along the road, they were run into near Sign Pine by an automobile occupied by Jordan, Joseph Holley and Richard White, colored.

Testimony offered was to the effect that Jordan quickly snatched the steering wheel of Holley's car and ran into the three men, which was contradicted by the defendant.

Judge Pruden held Jordan for Superior Court, placing bond at $500.

Mr. Ward was most seriously hurt, sustaining a broken left collar bone and chest injuries. Dail was badly cut on the forehead and chin, while Boyce was only badly shaken up.
