

29 Seniors of Edenton High School Graduate

can never repay. The last landmark he named as religion, telling the graduates that religion is one of the fundamentals of this community and symbolic of immortality. He asked the seniors to ponder of the eight landmarks, not to destroy them and to keep them un-sullied.

A piano solo skillfully rendered by Miss Jennie Ruth McAlilly added to the enjoyment of the exercises.

In presenting the diplomas John Holmes deplored the fact that the class, due to a shorter term, has received less schooling than any class in 25 years, and that if conditions maintain the incoming freshman class will have received eight months less training when they graduate. He advised the graduates regarding the dangerous adage "when in Rome do as the Romans do," but urged them always to do the right thing regardless of the consequences.

Those who were presented their diplomas were:

Lillian Ruth Ainsley, Mildred Gertrude Alexander, Elizabeth Frances Britton, Evelyn Joyce Brown, Lance Latham Bufflap, Elsie Lee Carden, Mary Elizabeth Cates, William Henderson Coffield, William Woodrow Corprew, Mary Foye Cozart, Edith Mae Garrett, William Thurman Gregory, Elizabeth Victoria Habit, Julia Frances Henderson, Rebecca Idol Hollowell, Ariene Gilliam Jackson, Willie Mae Overton, Margaret Etheridge Satterfield, Lena Frances Smith, Worth Eugene Spencer, Margaret Elizabeth Spire, Vernon Lee Spruill, Madeline Lillian Turner, Mildred Corinne Ward, Edna Lee White, Evelyn Louise White, Sarah Elizabeth White, Charles Henry Wood, Edward Cutler Wozelka, with the diploma for Essie Christine Bunch to be presented to her parents.

Dr. W. I. Hart, Jr., president of the Edenton Rotary Club, presented the Rotary cup to Mary Elizabeth Cates as the best all-around student. Miss Cates was also the recipient of the scholarship medal. Vernon Spruill was presented the athletic medal as the most outstanding athlete.

In awarding Seventh Grade certificates to 58 incoming freshmen, C. D. Stewart expressed the hope that everyone would continue as students and that four years hence they would occupy the stage as graduates.

Those receiving certificates were: Emma Alexander, Beatrice G. Alexander, Richard Paxton Badham, Jr., Hubert Barnes, Gene Isabella Bunch, Lloyd Channing Burton, Anne Carran Chappell, Essie Leola Coffield, Edith Elizabeth Corprew, Gussie Anita Cox, Marguerite Elizabeth Elliott, Edward Everett, Corinne Bell Forehand, Ervin Cason Griffin, Noah James Goodwin, Jr., Pattie Louise Garrett, James Thomas Hare, Fernan Hare, Evelyn Elizabeth Hare, Edward Hare, Thurman Harrell, Emily W. Howard, James Lafayette Hassell, Jr., Miles Everett Haste, Helen Olivia Hunter, David Habit, Cecil H. Hollowell, Melva Narie Jordan, Meredith Jones, Vernon Rhodes Knox, Sarah Pearl Lane, Wilma Marie Langsdale, Herman B. Lassiter, Doris Jean Leary, Mack Ernest Miller, Sophie Ann Mills, Virginia Wright Moore, Pauline Moore, Elizabeth Ann Moran, Sarah Edith Oliver, Evelyn Sawyer Perry, Myrtle Marie Presley, Howard Phipps, Mary E. Privott, Catherine Alice Reaves, Theodore William Roberts, Catherine Rogerson, Joseph P. Rowlett, Robert Polk Satterfield, Murray S. J. Small, Carroll Davis Stewart, Helen McMullan Swanner, Ernest Swanner, Hazel Elean Twiddy, Margaret Wilroy Upton, Raymond Saunders Ward and Herbert L. White, Jr.

Mr. Holmes also paid tribute to 47 students, who despite one of the most inclement sessions of school had braved the elements and escaped sickness to be able to attend school every day without being tardy. In this connection he paused to compliment Dorothy Bufflap who completed her tenth year in the Edenton school with a perfect attendance record. Billy Gregory and Sarah Elizabeth White also had a perfect attendance record during their four year high school course.

The complete list for perfect attendance during the year were: First Grade—Uva May Arnold, Helen Louise Barrow, and Josephine Mills. Second Grade—Carolyn Elliott, Colon Jackson, Jr., Lois Reich. Third Grade—Kenneth Ainsley and Sara Russell. Fourth Grade—Shelton Moore, Jr., Elizabeth Crumme. Fifth Grade—John Asbell, Cora Edward Bond, Lester Forehand, Muriel Hurdle, Dorothy Parker, Lester Stewart and Samuel White. Sixth Grade—Margaret Bunch, Elton Forehand, Frances Hollowell, Carolyn Oglesby, Ruth Vail Selby, Catherine Ward, Grace Wilkins. Seventh Grade—Dick Badham, Jack Barrow, Ann Chappell, Corinne Forehand, Pattie Garrett, Theodore Roberts, Joe Rowlett, Carroll Stewart.

Mr. Cale did not discount the knowledge of things in this world, but recommended a knowledge of Christ to help face the perplexing problems and tribulations of life, saying that only by this knowledge can one majestically, heroically and successfully face conditions in a world that is rocking, and in the last hour face the realities of life intelligently and gracefully.

"The acceptance of Christ spans the chasm between an infinite God and finite man," continued the speaker, "and one must know God by faith for finite man cannot comprehend an infinite God."

In closing his sermon, Mr. Cale recommended to the graduating class that above all else they should make their business to learn of Christ,

Mr. Holmes thanked Mr. Meadows for his splendid address and expressed his appreciation for the support and cooperation tendered the school during the year. He also expressed a hope that at the next commencement a hall would be available that would more adequately accommodate those who attend.

The exercises came to a close with the senior class singing "The Bells of St. Mary's" and benediction by Rev. George W. Blount.

On Monday evening when the Class Day exercises were held the inadequacy of the school auditorium was again apparent when half hour before the exercises began not a single seat was available and crowds lined along the walls of the room. By the time the program started the aisles were jammed and the entrances to the auditorium were so crowded that many were greatly inconvenienced and unable to enjoy the program. According to various opinions it was the largest crowd ever to attend any commencement exercise, it being estimated that possibly enough were turned away from the school to comfortably fill the auditorium.

The graduating class appeared on the stage in the form of a garden party, the decorations and furniture greatly aiding in the effectiveness of the scene. Worth Spencer, president of the class, welcomed the friends present. Margaret Spire presented the history of the class, followed by Sarah Elizabeth White, the class poet.

What furnished the most amusing part of the program were the prophecies made by Margaret Satterfield, who was dressed as a Gypsy palm reader. As she predicted the future of her classmates, little children appeared on the stage attractively costumed in the roll their representative was to take in future years. These little tots added materially to the pleasure of the program and caused round after round of applause. Those who participated were: Delorene Phthisic, Thelma Shaw, Jimmy Earnhardt, Soble Cayton, Fay Dail, West Byrum, Doris Layton, Lucy V. Parker, Clarence Leary, Lillian Byrum, Mary MacDonald Holmes, Teddy Lupton, Nora Lee White, Lillian Bass, Philip McMullan, Betty Byrum, Josephine Mills, Bobby Byrum, Judy Jones, Jean Tanner, Sam Holmes Elliott, Eunice Ann Britton, Peggy White, Barbara Layton, Milton W. Flynn, Rebecca Swanner, Patsey Taylor and Joan Cobb.

Evelyn Brown as giftorian of the class presented each member a present which in one way or another reflected actions or characteristics during their school life and was reason for much amusement. Arelen Jackson read the last will and testament of the senior class, while Edward Wozelka presented the class superlatives. Mary Elizabeth Cates, valedictorian of the class, in her address commented on the achievement of graduation, but said that in commencement it was only the beginning of a new era in the lives of the graduating class.

Though handicapped by the crowded condition of the auditorium, members of the sophomore class presented the daisy chain to the seniors, which was also an impressive feature of the program. As the exercises came to a close a beautiful tribute was paid to Essie Bunch by Rebecca Hollowell. Miss Bunch was an outstanding student of the class, who met an untimely death by drowning at Chowan River bridge two weeks ago. "To know her was to love her," said Miss Hollowell, "and though she is not here in body, I am sure her spirit is with us tonight. She was an outstanding student of our class, loved and respected by all, and her sudden passing has brought great sorrow to the class of 1936."

Rev. W. Frank Cale, pastor of Rocky Hook Baptist Church, preached the baccalaureate sermon Sunday night when the auditorium was filled to capacity. Mr. Cale delivered a very forceful sermon on "The Greatest of the Sciences," using as a text Phil. 3:8. "This is an age of inventions and discoveries," he began. "Burdens are lifted and suffering alleviated due to various discoveries and we should pay tribute to scientists. We must have respect for good sciences, but the knowledge of Christ is the greatest of all sciences."

He told of the outstanding qualities of Paul, who counted all for loss but for knowledge of Jesus Christ. "Knowledge of Jesus is spiritual, which is above material," he said, "and when knowledge of material things are put in the discard, knowledge of Christ continues on. God's word changes not and will stand the test of time."

Mr. Cale did not discount the knowledge of things in this world, but recommended a knowledge of Christ to help face the perplexing problems and tribulations of life, saying that only by this knowledge can one majestically, heroically and successfully face conditions in a world that is rocking, and in the last hour face the realities of life intelligently and gracefully.

"The acceptance of Christ spans the chasm between an infinite God and finite man," continued the speaker, "and one must know God by faith for finite man cannot comprehend an infinite God."

In closing his sermon, Mr. Cale recommended to the graduating class that above all else they should make their business to learn of Christ, adding that if this is done they need not worry about their success in a life upon which they were about to enter.

Rev. E. L. Wells offered prayer at the outset of the meeting and Rev. C. A. Ashby pronounced the benediction.

ceeding. Jesus is or should be your ideal to imitate. He is the perfect specimen of manhood.

"As you start out in this, the morning of youth, to make your day's run, may you catch a vision of Him whose spotless character, His devotion to truth, His uncompromising loyalty to God, and thus to the human race, furnish you a true ideal of life."

Mr. Byrum outlining the thoughts of his text, Phil. 3:13-14, said forgetting the things that are behind has much to do with the blessedness and power of every life. Full attention cannot be set upon two things, before and behind, at the same time. "Are you satisfied with your present achievements?" asked the speaker. "If so, you will remain on the plains of the lowlands. Are you as good as you want to be? If so, you have never caught sight of the lowly Nazarene. The mark set before us is perfection. Progress depends upon a worthy purpose, a dauntless will and a divine force. You must honor God and His word with a vigor and challenge of a noble manhood and womanhood."

In closing his sermon, Mr. Byrum told his hearers that the allurements of the world must be mastered. There are some pleasures in sin, and wealth is deceitful. He urged the graduate to make a choice like Moses, choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season.
