Bertie Mourns Loss Of Dr. L. B. Evans

With the passing of Dr. L. B. Evans on Friday at Tayloe Hospital, Washington, N. C., Bertie County lost a great and beloved man as well as a physician. Coming from the southern part of our State twenty years ago and being a friend to all, he answered calls day or night, to the poor as well as to those able to pay. It was he who made possible the much-needed hospital rooms in Windsor, and had his health permitted there would have been a real hospital in the near future. It was with bowed heads Saturday morning that his many friends watched his body borne from its home in a casket banked with lovely flowers down a path with flowers forming a wall. The flowers were held by dear friends. The body was carried to the family plot in Fayetteville. Dr. Evans leaves a lovely wife and three little ones much loved by all, and to whom is extended the sympathy of a host of friends in their sad hour. It is hoped that Mrs. Evans and her children will continue to make their home in the community.

Norbert Sawyer Knows How Feels To Be KOed

Norbert Sawyer, fleet-footed delivery boy for M. W. Jackson, can now realize how a prize fighter feels when he gets the count of 10. On Monday morning while delivering milk on East Church Street, Norbert slipped on a porch and in an effort to save the milk held up his hands as he went down, striking his stomach on the steps. Plucky little fellow as he is, he gathered himself together and jumped onto the running board of the milk truck, but before going very far Mr. Jackson missed his ace delivery boy and looking out the side of the truck spied him lying on the street.

He possibly lost his grip as the effect of the flail and when picked up by Mr. Jackson, the boy said, "I just had the wind knocked out of me." The little fellow recovered shortly and continued with his work.

REPUBLICAN Bertie County

By Walter Hughes

LINES

Thirty years ago, the tug J. W. Branning, landed me at Willow Branch Wharf on Chowan River at daybreak.

The blushes of morning had ting'd the blue sky.

As I gaz'd on the beautiful scene; The wild bird was teaching its nestling to fly,

Where the vista was lovely and green.

On its bosom, the violet and king-cup appeared,

And cowslips and primroses smiled; And knots of dark blue-bells in beauty were rear'd

And crimson tip'd daisies grew wild.

The gold-blossom'd furze, the May-thorn in bloom,

The lark as it warbled its song: The dark embower'd shades of impervious gloom,

And the Chowan as it glided along.

Were sweet to my view—e'en the shadowy tree,

The rose just emerg'd from its bud; The moss-cover'd bank that enclosed the green lea

And the grass tufted hill where I stood—

Were pleasing—and oft from the cliff's rugged height,

Have I gazed on the scene when alone;

Have I watched the dark Chowan as it murmur'd in sight,

And fancied the prospect my own.

No more, through thy shades shall I pensively stray.

While eve' on thy blossoms shall blow;

While night gives a charm to the moon-beam that plays

Through the trees on the waters below.

Farewell to thy beauties, thy blossoms and bowers,

To a far foreign land I rove: Still 'mid other scenes in my happiest hours,

I'll think of thee, sweet Willow Branch Grove.
