STATE AND NATIONAL FIGHT IN LAST LAP

He has always been that their President must have his hand on the entire nation, that he should come from a thickly populated section well versed, however, in the needs of rural neighborhoods, or residents in the rural neighborhoods, and, perhaps, that he should never adorn himself with sunflowers at a climatic time when sunflowers are already wilted and dead.

A nice state, Kansas, broad in expanse and wild and woolly in its early day life, but if a Kansan goes into the White House come down to The Herald office next Wednesday and help the editor eat crow.

Between now and Tuesday, Chairman Winborne says, there will be more than 1,000 precinct meetings held in North Carolina. He has called on each of the 1851 precinct chairmen to "bear down" during the last two weeks before the primary. A precinct-by-precinct survey of the conditions in each county of the State indicates that the majority of the precincts are better organized than ever before, although both organization and enthusiasm are lagging in a number of counties. There has been more work than ever before among the Democratic women of the State and among the Democratic veterans while the Young Democratic Clubs are more numerous and more active than during any election year since the movement started, headquarters reported.

Reports from every county of the State indicate that at least 43 of the 100 counties the Democratic vote will be greater than it was in 1932, the banner year of Democracy in North Carolina. On the other hand, the surveys show that unless a great deal of work is done during the last two weeks the vote in 21 counties will be less than in 1932. The situation in the remaining 36 counties caused observers to forecast a vote about equal to that of four years ago.

If these surveys or reports prove accurate, the total Democratic vote should go above the half million mark. However, Chairman Winborne pointed out that this year the Republicans as well as the Democrats are doing more work than usual. "And there is an awful lot of Republican money from somewhere being turned loose in the State," he added. "It is of the utmost importance that we keep driving ahead until sundown November 3."

COUNTY RALLIES TO CLIMAX ON MONDAY

ment of the campaign in this County, has left no stone unturned to guarantee a record vote on Tuesday. Last Saturday, he said, was the last day for registration and he urged the workers to see that every laggard got his or her name on the books and had thus become eligible for a vote on Tuesday.

So far the registration is a little over normal, in some precincts it has been substantially high, while in others it has run along as on previous years.

Four years ago the Chowan Democratic vote was around 1650, according to R. D. Dixon, court clerk and secretary of the county committee, with about 50 votes cast for Hoover and five for Norman Thomas, the Socialist candidate. The Thomas adherents failed to qualify in North Carolina this year and thereby lost a place on the ballot.

The County ticket is as follows: For State Senator—W. I. Halstead and John F. White.

For House of Representatives—John F. White.

For Sheriff—J. A. Bunch.

For Register of Deeds—M. L. Bunch.

For Judge Recorder's Court—J. N. Pruden.

For Prosecuting Attorney Recorder's Court—W. S. Privott.

For Treasurer—Geo. C. Hoskins.

For County Commissioners—D. M. Warren, W. H. Winborne, A. C. Boyce, J. A. Webb and A. D. Ward.

For Board of Education—S. E. Morris, Isaac Byrum, Z. T. Evans, Mrs. Geo. C. Wood and L. W. Belch.

For Constable First Township—E. L. White.

For Constable Second Township—H. W. Dale.

For Constable Third Township—J. J. Byrum.

FOREHAND SEEKS RELEASE

hospital head declares Forehand has maniacal tendencies and his release would be a menace to society. This letter was received Monday by Forehand's lawyer, W. D. Pruden, and proved so confusing, cross-purposing as it did the earlier certificate of doubt on the strength of which Mr. Pruden was able to secure a habeas corpus writ from Judge Frizzelle a further delay in presenting the matter.

Similar word from the state insane asylum derogatory of Forehand's mental competency has been received by John F. White, attorney for Mrs. Eva Lucille Forehand, the prisoner's wife, who is making the fight to keep Forehand in custody.

And still another angle to the case is evidenced by action brought by Mrs. Forehand, through J. N. Pruden, to have a prospective bonus certificate of $645 due her prisoner-husband, applied toward payment of a $2,000 note due by him to S. J. White, Paradise section farmer. Mrs. Forehand, in the same papers, sets forth that her husband is, also, mentally unfit to control a small farm he owns in Third Township and begs of the court the right to dispose of it in his behalf.

Forehand, who talks intelligibly and seems far from a paranoiac, seeks his release, his attorney states, so that he may be privileged to attend to his own business affairs and handle his obligations in a way satisfactory to all concerned.

A former resident of this county, Forehand has had a trying time since the war. He was gassed during the last month of the world struggle and for a time was detained in a Paris hospital. Later he was in rehabilitation hospitals in the United States and served two periods at Dix Hill, following threats of physical violence made against his wife and children.

For five or six years he has been a patient at the Veterans Facility Hospital, Augusta, Ga., from which he has twice taken French Leave. The last time was several weeks ago when he managed to work his way here by bus on the promise that his fare would be awaiting the bus folks in Edenton. He then started to walk on toward his wife's home in mid county, and was quickly picked up by Sheriff Bunch and put in jail.

The sheriff communicated with Augusta and the hospital sent a man here to get Forehand but he refused to go voluntarily and the Georgia visitor returned without him. Subsequent letters from the hospital said they did not want him back.

Bale Your Hay to Keep it Good

McCORMICK-DEERING Hay Presses

WHETHER you use all your hay or sell part of it, baling offers many advantages. Baled hay takes up much less storage space than loose hay, is easier to handle, more economical to feed, and usually retains its feeding value longer. Only in baled form can hay be shipped profitably.

Any way you look at it, a McCormick-Deering Hay Press is a good investment. And when you finish your own work you can do custom baling. We can supply you with 1 and 2-horse hay presses, and with power presses which can be operated by your own tractor or with an engine mounted on the press.

Ask us for further information on baling and on the size of McCormick-Deering Hay Press best suited for your farm.

ROTARIANS DINE IN HERTFORD

based on love and respect, pays back, pays off, if you wish to put it that way, dividends, material and spiritual dividends, beyond our fondest expectations."

Mr. Bryan commented on the tangible work which Rotarians are doing, of which he was proud, "but," said he, those things which are done which can be seen, which can be measured, are not the greatest contributions that Rotary has made to the world. I believe that the highest contribution that Rotary has made to the world is the cultivation of the individual Rotarian, in Rotary ideals.

"With all due respect to the teachers and preachers, to those who teach and who preach ideals to us, it is not the teacher nor the preacher who ultimately conditions our community, but it is the practical man of every-day affairs, the man out in the channels of trade, out in the give-and-take world of commerce who ultimately conditions our community and our world."

The next inter-city meeting will be held in Elizabeth City.
