

RAMBLING WITH THE Rambler

By "LITTLE BUFF"

Out Last Week

The Rambler was completely shut off from The Chowan Herald last week, his article having been mailed too late. And well it was that things turned out as they did for with the great number of reverses and other turmoil caused on the various gridiron fronts, the Rambler's good percentage at picking the winners would have suffered to a great end. Last week was without a doubt the greatest week-end of football this country has had for many a year and all sports writers have been sitting up late at night trying to figure the situation out.

Nevertheless, this is another week and we will carry on just as if nothing had happened. The Rambler again had to cut his column short, giving his opinion on 45 of the major football games and the winners: North Carolina-Davidson—Stringing along with the Tar Heels although the Rambler expects Teeny Lafferty and Armfield to cause trouble.

State-Boston College—Boston College tied Michigan State last week-end, making yours truly like Boston College.

Duke-Wake Forest—Duke is still mad about that Tennessee defeat. Too mad, in fact for the Deacs.

Alabama-Tulane—A pair of evenly matched teams, both undefeated. From a clear sky, Tulane.

Arkansas-Rice—The dark horse, Arkansas.

Army-Muhlenberg—A breather for the Army after defeat.

Auburn-Georgia Tech—Maybe Tech's Konneman is not as good as the papers say. Auburn.

Baylor-Oklahoma City—Baylor. Brown-Yale—Here's one for the Elis.

Bucknell-Detroit—A toss-up, with Bucknell on top.

California—University of Southern California—In spite of their defeat at the hands of Washington State, California.

Carnegie Tech-N. Y. U.—Carnegie Tech.

Centenary-Tulsa—Centenary.

Chicago-Ohio State—Ohio State "should" win this one.

Albemarle Counties Listed In 'Use District Land Classification'

Raleigh, N. C.—A "use district land classification" of five counties lying between Albemarle Sound and the Pamlico River, designed to make available to the public a classification of each area in terms of its use capabilities, is to be made by the land use planning section of the Resettlement Administration.

The work will be under direction of Dr. Paul W. Wager, regional land planning chief, and R. T. Melvin, North Carolina land planning specialist, whose headquarters are in Raleigh.

"The importance of determining the use capabilities of this peninsula is based on three factors," Dr. Wager stated in announcing the undertaking.

"First, it will be of value in connection with the development of Scuppernon Farms, the resettlement farmstead project for which the Resettlement Administration is now acquiring land in the Lake Phelps section; second, its importance is accentuated by the effect on surrounding land of raising the water level of Lake Mattamuskeet, now dedicated as a refuge for wild fowl, and, third, by the announcement of the state highway department that a bridge will be built over Albemarle Sound, bringing a large undeveloped trucking area 75 miles nearer a northern market."

Citadel-Clemson—Clemson much too strong.

Colgate-Holy Cross—Colgate will not repeat against the Crusaders.

Columbia-Dartmouth—Dartmouth, Cornell-Princeton—Too much for Snavely's proteges.

Florida-Georgia—One that is hard to figure. Georgia.

Fordham-Purdue—Another brain-teaser, with maybe, the Rams having a slight edge.

Harvard-Virginia—Harvard.

Idaho-St. Mary's—Those Gallopin' Gaels.

Indiana-Syracuse—Indiana. Iowa-Minnesota—Minnesota.

Kansas-Nebraska—The Cornhuskers in a close one.

Kansas State - Oklahoma—Oklahoma.

Kentucky-Manhattan—Gathering hopes for Kentucky.

Louisiana State-Mississippi State—And still the Rambler picks L. S. U.

Mississippi-Loyola (N. O.)—Mississippi, resting.

Marquette-Creighton—A set-up for the Golden Avalanche.

Maryland - Richmond—The Old Liners.

Michigan State-Temple—Anything can happen in this game, but Michigan State is my favorite.

Michigan-Penn.—Penn., in a hard fought game.
