

RAMBLING WITH THE Rambler

By "LITTLE BUFF"

Let's Forget It!

Well, now that the Duke-Carolina outcome has been finally and definitely decided in the favor of the Blue Devils, the Rambler may as well coast through the rest of the current football season, with no special plan or team in mind except the Louisiana State Tigers.

This week-end proves not to be as exciting as last because of the fact that many teams will play on Thanksgiving day instead of Saturday. Carolina will be the only member of the Big Five to engage in battle, traveling down to the Gamecocks' stronghold in the state of South Carolina.

Nevertheless, the Northwestern-Notre Dame game will be watched with nervous tension by all interested in Northwestern, the team slated for the national championship.

RAMBLING

This job of picking the winners would be all right if a fellow knew who'd win, but who does? Anyway, here's my choice this week. How does it compare with your list?

University of North Carolina-South Carolina—Without a word of comment, the Tar Heels.

Baylor-Southern Methodist—S. M. U. took a terrific beating from the Razorbacks last week-end but tables will turn their way against Baylor.

Bucknell-Penn State—The Rambler will have to follow the Bisons.

California-Stanford—As evenly matched as they come, but here's favoring the Bears.

Centenary-Texas A. & M.—By comparative scores, Texas A. & M.

Chicago-Illinois—Picking an unsteady Illinois.

Colgate-Syracuse—Those Red

Raiders.

Duquesne - Marquette — Despite Duquesne's impressive victory over Carnegie Tech last Saturday, I'll stick to the Golden Avalanche.

Florida - Georgia Tech — Here's one for the Techmen.

Fordham - Georgia — Georgia's win from Tulane may or may not mean anything. The Rambler will ramble along with those Rams.

Georgetown - Maryland — Can't understand what's the matter with the Old Liners, but let's take another chance on them.

Harvard - Yale — Yale rates higher, according to their testor, Princeton.

Indiana - Purdue — The Boiler-makers.

Iowa - Temple — Pop Warner's Owls in a hard one.

Kansas State - Nebraska — From defeat to victory for the Cornhuskers.

Manhattan - Villanova — Blankly, Villanova.

Michigan - Ohio State — Close one for the Buckeyes.

Michigan State - Arizona — The Michigan Staters.

Minnesota - Wisconsin — Minnesota.

Mississippi - Mississippi State — State.

Northwestern - Notre Dame — The Rambler believes that Northwestern will end the current season undefeated.

Oregon - Oregon State — Oregon State.

Princeton - Dartmouth — A toss-up, Dartmouth.

Rice-Texas Christian—T. C. U.

Western Maryland - Catholic U.—Catholic U.

TRAVELER'S TREE

HERE'S a tree which acts like a pitcher and looks like a fan and is called a traveler's tree. It collects water between the spokes of its fan-like branches holding as much as two pitchers full at a time—a supply which, back in pioneer days, it is said, furnished refreshment to tired and thirsty travelers. This palm is only one of dozens of strange looking trees which travelers visiting Panama on the weekly cruises to Chile find around the Canal and in South America.

For instance, there are the cannon ball trees which bear fruit resembling cannon balls, each containing four slices of meat which resembles somewhat that of the avocado pear but is not known to be worth eating.

Then there's the monkey-puzzle tree with its hard, rough bark so ridged that it is totally unlike other tree barks and completely puzzles ambitious monkeys trying to climb it. The white lily tree is also common to Panama—in blossom it has lovely white lilies and produces a gum which bird vendors melt and stick on the branches to entrap birds. The banyon tree is another strange species—having limbs which turn back and grow into the ground. The pay paya is another native tree, the fruit the meat of which resembles a melon, and is an all-occasion affair which finds its way into everything from salads to cocktails, and from cake to ice cream; and, if the need arises, can, through its pepsin content, make a tough steak tender.

Game Warden Issues "Don'ts" As Hunting Season Opens Friday

In view of the opening of the hunting season on Friday for quail, rabbit and turkey and the duck season opening on Thanksgiving Day, J. G. Perry, game warden for Chowan County, is urging every sportsman to secure his hunting license before taking to the fields and woods, and to observe the bag limit. The season for quail, rabbit and turkey will be open until February 15, with a bag limit for quail fixed at 10 per day or 150 for the season. There is no limit on rabbits, but turkey calls for only one a day and only three for the season.

The duck season is open from November 26 to December 25 and the bag limit as well as possession limit calls for 10 birds.

Anticipating an unusual number of hunters this year and in an effort to hold accidents to a minimum, Mr. Perry has issued the following "Don'ts" which may well be pondered by every person who enjoys a day's sport after game:

Don't keep your gun loaded except when you are actually hunting, but handle it at all times as if it were loaded.

Don't point your gun at anyone even if you are sure it is empty.

Don't carry your gun when climbing fences or brush piles.

Don't handle a gun by the muzzle or pull it toward you.

Don't carry your gun so that an accidental discharge might shoot your companion.

Don't shoot at any game unless you can see it clearly enough to positively identify it. There is safety in our North Carolina deer law in that the deer you can shoot must be a buck and all bucks have horns.

Don't violate the farmer's hospitality by leaving gates open, cutting fences, or destroying his property.

Don't throw your smoke out of the car or into the brush without putting it out.

Don't hunt without a license—the game warden may get you at the time you are enjoying the hunt most.
