

WOODMEN ENJOY OYSTER SUPPER

Over 100 Gather In Local Hall On Friday Night; Kiff Speaks On Friendship

Over 100 Woodmen of the World from Perquimans and Chowan counties, as well as a few from Elizabeth City and Ahoskie crowded into the hall of Elm Camp over Ed Habit's store Friday night to enjoy an oyster supper. The affair was the result of a membership contest between the Edenton and Hertford camps in which Hertford won by a slight margin, the losers being obliged to furnish the victors a feast, which was done to perfection.

The usual meeting was dispensed with, the entire time being devoted to a season of fellowship during which A. O. Kiff of Ahoskie made a brief but stirring address on the value of friendship. During his remarks Mr. Kiff told those present that though in America fraternal and religious fellowship at present can be enjoyed, forces are at work which would break down the spirit of fraternalism, brotherhood and even Christianity. A careful study of the recent election returns, said Mr. Kiff, despite the landslide of President Roosevelt, reveals that there is a gradual spread of facism and communism, which if not stopped will result in similar situations now prevailing in Europe, where even churches have been destroyed and where every vestige of friendship appears to have vanished. In order to maintain our sacred privileges, Mr. Kiff said in closing, fraternities should band themselves together and kick in the pants those who would force their invidious methods upon a peace-loving people by propaganda which would eventually throw us in the same category as Spain, Germany and Italy.

Mr. Kiff complimented the progress made by both the Hertford and Edenton camps, both of which are making rapid strides in membership.

this information can be imparted to them, but this newspaper has an idea which it believes will be more effective, if properly carried out, than tons of literature and 10,000 square yards of billboard advertising.

Why not from time to time arrange to bring a well-known figure in the world of sports, such as Jack Dempsey, Lou Gehrig, Wallace Wade or Grantland Rice down here on a hunting or fishing trip with all expenses paid. Show them a good time, give them some good hunting or fishing, and the job will be done.

Each day that such a person might be here, his day's catch or kill, his good luck or his bad, his every move, in fact, could be flashed to the sports editors and hundreds of newspapers throughout the land, and they would leap at an opportunity to play it up on their sports pages.

It will be easy enough to ascertain what prominent sports personages like this or that kind of hunting or fishing. The editors of magazines such as Field and Stream can supply this information. Then appropriate invitations could be issued to several, and once an acceptance was gained, the rest would be comparatively easy.

It wouldn't take much money to pull off a stunt of this sort. But, oh, how many dollars worth of publicity it would net this section!

We offer the idea, and we believe it will turn the trick.—The Daily Independent.

Says Red Squill Best Rat Poison Known

Red Squill is considered by far the best rat poison known, but its success depends upon how and where it is distributed.

Two of its main advantages are that it is relatively harmless to domestic animals and that it is comparatively slow to take effect on rats, said George E. Lay, rodent control leader of the U. S. Biological Survey, with headquarters at N. C. State College.

When a fast-acting bait kills the first rats that nibble it, he explained, the other rats are frightened away and are, therefore, not likely to be poisoned.

Although Red Squill will not kill domestic animals, it may make them sick, and for this reason it should be placed where they cannot get at it very easily, Lay pointed out.

On farm premises, the bait should be spread late in the afternoon, after chickens and livestock have more or less settled down. Put out plenty of bait so that all rats will have a chance to eat it freely.

Look for runaways, burrows, and other places where rats may be, Lay continued, and place bait in and around these places. Many small bits of bait, about the size of marbles are better than a few bigger pieces.

Rats run along beams and rafters and in other high places, but they return to the floor or ground to seek feed and water. So the bait should be put out in low places rather than in those higher up.

Red Cross Potential Life Savers Number Nearly 2,000,000

First aid and life saving certificates issued by the American Red Cross since the start of the service 26 years ago now number 1,888,702. During the past year the Red Cross qualified 222,693 persons in first aid and taught water safety and rescue methods to 80,961.

This army of First Aiders and Life Savers is one of the great safety factors in the nation. They are trained to give immediate first aid at the scene of accident, thus saving many lives and preventing permanent injury. Red Cross training includes skill in treating for shock, splinting fractures, checking arterial bleeding, applying artificial respiration, towing drowning persons to safety, and in the safe handling of boat and canoe.

When the rats feel the effects coming on, they seek burrows and other out of the way places to die. Few if any dead rats are found in the open and there are seldom if any serious unpleasant odors.

However, if any dead rats are found in the open, Lay cautioned, they should be buried or otherwise destroyed.

FARMERS WARNED NOT SELL COTTON AT 'DOCKED' PRICES

Farmers are warned against selling their cotton at "docked" prices by M. G. Mann, general manager of the North Carolina Cotton Growers Cooperative Association.

"Due to excessive rain during the early picking season, many farmers have been led to believe that the grade of the State cotton crop this year would be inferior," Mr. Mann said, "and certain speculators over the State are taking advantage of this misapprehension to buy cotton for less than its real value."

Quoting government reports showing that more than 80 per cent of the crop ginned to date is running middling or better, Mr. Mann urged farmers to refuse to sell their cotton until it has been classed under supervision of a government-licensed classer and they know as much about its value as the man who is buying it.

"Instead of being 'docked,' most of our farmers should get a premium for their cotton this year," Mr. Mann said, as he pointed to figures showing that nine out of every ten bales ginned in the State so far have been 15-16 or longer and as such command a premium when sold cooperatively.

Will Rogers' Humorous Story

By WILL ROGERS

LOUIE is in the Real Estate business, and in his ads he uses a lot of very clever slogans to sell real estate.

You know any man that will buy real estate will fall for slogans, and Louie has almost as many slogans as he has lots to sell. Louie sent me this good retort on one man kidding another about wearing a beard. If you have a beard, or whiskers why this will be just the remark to pull on some bird that calls you "whiskers". Here it is.

A fellow come out of a place about half loaded, and he was primed up about right and looking for trouble. He saw an old fellow driving a cab, and he had a long bushy red beard. The Anti-Volsteadite hollered at him. "Ha there old lace curtains. I used to have a beard like that till I saw myself in the glass and cut 'em off!"

The old cabby looked at him and replied, "You ought to have a face like yours and I saw myself in the glass and I removed these."

Hints for Homemakers

By Janet Rogers

A SIMPLE job of modernizing the bathroom or kitchen can be done by covering the walls of the room with tempered pressed wood which has been scored in squares. This can be obtained at most lumber yards, where it is known as tempered tile. An advantage of material of this type is that it is not affected by moisture and can be painted, either overall or in checkered squares or any other design, to fit in with the color scheme. Standard decorative mouldings serve as trim at the top and bottom and it may be fastened to the walls either by waterproof glue with a few finishing nails. It comes in sheets as large as 4 by 8 feet.

4,750,000 Pounds of State Farm Products Helps Those On Relief

Distributing agricultural commodities to persons on relief has aided materially in reducing the surplus of farm products, according to Dean I. O. Schaub, of State College.

In this State alone, he said, more than 4,750,000 pounds of farm products were issued to those on relief during the period from October 1, 1935, to September 19, 1936.

The distribution was made through the Agricultural Adjustment Administration under the supervision of the Federal Surplus Commodities Corporation and in cooperation with the North Carolina Relief Administration.

This was made possible by the agricultural surplus-removal programs conducted over the Nation at the request of the farmers, the dean added. The surpluses thus distributed relieved markets of burdensome, price-depressing over-supplies, and were issued to people who could not buy them in the regular channels of trade.

Among the things distributed in North Carolina were: 2,839,344 pounds of fresh apples, 550,000 pounds of dried beans, 180,075 pounds of dried peas, 144,000 pounds of citrus fruit, 360,000 pounds of prunes, 280,500 pounds of onions, 200,050 pounds of dry skim milk, 40,000 pounds of enriched oat cereal, and 195,000 pounds of rolled oats.

In addition, the State was allocated 41,523 bushels of wheat for conversion into flour and feed.

To help strengthen the cotton market, the government allotted to North Carolina 1,550 bales of raw cotton, 517,440 yards of cotton fabric, 131,750 yards of cotton ticking, and 2,755 cotton mats for road-building purposes.

Higher Meat Prices Predicted For Year

Livestock and meat prices in 1937 will be higher than at any time during the past several years, according to the present outlook.

In an outlook sent Earl H. Hostetler, in charge of animal husbandry research at State College, by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, it was stated that all meat supplies will be smaller next year.

The reduction will be most pronounced in pork and the better grades of beef, the report said. This means that farmers will get better prices for their animals.

Even with favorable conditions for feed production during the next several years, it was pointed out, it appears that the total supply of meat animals for slaughter will not equal the 1930-34 average until 1940.

Total meat supplies in 1937 are expected to be smaller than in 1936 and almost as small as in 1935, when the supply was the smallest in the past 15 years.

This decrease in supply is seen as a result of the 1936 drought, which curtailed feed production in much of the livestock producing area.

The average yearly slaughter of livestock during the 1923-34 period under Federal inspection amounted to some 13,500,000 pounds of dressed meat. In 1935, the dressed weight of livestock slaughtered was 10,274,000 pounds.

North Carolina farmers who have feed on their own farms, and most of them have a fairly good supply, will find it to their advantage to produce more meat, especially beef and pork, for sale next year, Hostetler said.
