FACING THE SUPREME TEST OF | will' but "what thou "wilt." Ralph

Golden Text: "Not what I will, but what thou wilt."-Mark 14:36

Lesson Text: Mark 14:32-46

We come now to the last few hours in the earthly life of Jesus. Earlier he had sent Peter and John into Jerusalem to make arrangements for his final supper with the twelve. Knowing that Judas was plotting with his enemies, Jesus did not let him gather in the evening.

Following this last meal together, during which Judas made his departure, Jesus went with his disciples toward the Garden of Gethsemane, where he often went to pray. Leaving his disciples, with the advice that they pray against temptation, Jesus took Peter, James and John and went Knowing full well the events about to transpire, Jesus told the three to abide and watch while he went a on the ground, prayed to his Father, asking that if it were possible, the Nothing so much proves the humanhere in the Garden.

First of all, he was "sore amazed," and "greatly troubled". We are of- there would be no turning back. ten inclined to the belief that Jesus was never perplexed about what he was going to do or what his Father's H. Genne. "Do we gain our greatest will for him was, but it gives us a freedom by becoming a slave of God's sort of closer kinship with him to realize that he too was at times per-plexed and troubled at the turn of the best thing to be done? . . . God events. Then, too, Jesus was "ex-ceeding sorrowful." It is natural to service rests on voluntary commitassume that Jesus loved life, loved ment, and he seems content to let his friends and loved his disciples men choose to become servants of his and the thought of parting from will. Herein seems to be the great them was a cause of deep sorrow to challenge of God's will . . . He calls him. However, probably the main to us, and, if we stop long enough to cause of his being "exceeding sorrow- listen, he tells us about the things he ful" was the thought that through would like to see done, things which his assumption of the sin of the must be done before we have a Chrisworld, he would be separated, if only tian world, the peace and justice temporarily, from his Heavenly which must be created in all areas of Father. This explains the meaning our personal and social living. Here of his later utterance on the cross, are his challenges, but their accomasking God why He had forsaken plishment will try our every fibre to him.

sion and submissive to the will of shall be tested in the depths of our God, Jesus was ready to meet his being. Shall we be able to say, 'Not fate, declaring, "Sobeit, not what I what I will, but what thou wilt?"

SERVICE International Sunday School Lesson is to desire—but to desire what God truly said, "Thy will be done is the keynote to which every prayer must be tuned." Jesus so lived with God that he was ready for his Gethsemane. We, on the other hand, live without God until we get into our Gethsemane, and then we grope frantically for him.

On returning to his three disciples, Jesus found them sleeping instead of watching as he had requested them to do. Even Simon Peter, who had been so confident of his loyalty a few know in advance where they would short hours before, was unable to stay awake. A second and a third time Jesus went away to pray and returned, each time to find the disciples sleeping. Disappointed, perhaps, but gently, Jesus looked at his sleeping disciples and watched over them while they slept.

However, the time for sleeping was suddenly cut short by Judas and the servants of the chief priests, the a little further into the Garden. scribes and the elders. Judas, of course, led the procession, made his way to Jesus and gave him the "betraying kiss," at the same time callstone's throw from them and, falling ing him, "Rabbi," or "Master." Those who had come to take Jesus "laid their hands on him and took him." approaching cup might be averted. Peter, as impulsive as ever, drew his sword, but at the command of Jesus, ity of Jesus than does his experience it went back into its scabbard. Jesus knew his hour had come and, accepting it as the Father's will, he knew
