

Weather Favorable For Housing Crops In Chowan County

Practically All of Cotton Crop Has Already Been Picked

Dry weather during the last few weeks has enabled harvesting to progress nicely throughout Chowan County. Most farmers report that practically all of their cotton has been picked.

Cotton picking labor is being concentrated on those farms which have been unable to get cotton picked, and it is the opinion of County Agent C. W. Overman that practically all of this work will be done by October 20.

Peanut digging is progressing as rapidly as the nuts are ready, but in a few instances farmers are getting behind in this work. However, if the favorable weather continues, it is expected that practically the entire peanut crop in the county will be housed with little more damage.
