

Free Demonstration Farmall Cub Tractor Friday, September 12

All Farmers Invited to Goodwin Farm Near Edenton

Farmers in Chowan and adjoining counties are invited to attend a free demonstration of the new Farmall Cub tractor, which is scheduled to be held Friday, September 12, at 2:30 o'clock on the Goodwin farm at the junction of U. S. Highway 17 and the old Hertford road about a mile north of Edenton. The demonstration is sponsored by Byrum Implement & Truck Company, who invite all farmers to see for themselves the practical uses of the Farmall Cub Tractor which will be shown during the demonstration.

"Operators of small farm acreages, preferably of 40 crop acres or less," says Haywood Bunch, manager of the Byrum Implement & Truck Company, "at long last are being provided with a new, small, all-purpose tractor that will give them practical, economical and complete mechanization at a price within range of the average farmer's pocketbook."

The long-desired tractor became available when the International Harvester Company announced that it has started volume production of its new, small, low-cost Farmall Cub tractor, an exact scaled-down model of the row crop tractors used by large-scale farmers throughout the United States.

Produced at the company's Louisville, Kentucky, formerly the Curtis-Wright plant, the Farmall Cub is designed specifically for use by truck farm operators, small general farms, orchardists, large general farms needing small auxiliary units and for businessmen who have become farm devotees.
