

C. W. Overman Sees Good Chance For Dairying In County

Extension Dairyman In Chowan Looking Over Prospects

Chowan County presents a wonderful opportunity for some dairying, according to County Agent C. W. Overman. "There is no dairy in the county and particular sections of the county are well suited to produce pastures and feed crops needed," says Mr. Overman. "It is an enterprise which should be bringing additional farm income to many farms. The problems involved in getting dairying started are many. Cash crops on most farms for the last several years have provided good income. Our farmers are familiar with cash crop farming and not familiar with dairying. We don't seem to have many farmers who are willing to keep and milk a cow for home use. The cost of starting into the dairy business, even with a few cows, is very high at this time. There are also many other factors that enter into the problem."

A. C. Kimrey, Extension dairyman of N. C. State College, was in Edenton last week looking over the prospects of dairying. He, together with Mr. Overman, visited a few farmers and gave some very sound advice. Mr. Overman said he still hopes to get some dairying started in the county.
