Frank White's Land Improved By Plans

Pine Seedlings Furnished By Soil Conservation Service

Complete soil conservation plans were prepared last summer for Frank White's farms located in the Paradise section of Chowan County. The Albemarle soil conservation district assisted Mr. White in making the plans. Since the plans were set up Mr. White has been working at the application of certain of the planned soil and water conservation practices. In addition to carrying out soil fertility improvement measures such as crop rotations and winter cover crops, he has been revising his drainage measures to improve the removal of surplus field water. In one field of about 14 acres he has sloped three tap ditches, bedded the land to the ditch intervals with a disc tiller, and reversed the direction of his crop rows so that they now lead across the sloped or flat V-type ditches. Mr. White says that "Anyone can now see that the field is better drained than before."

On another farm tract Mr. White has seeded shaded woods borders to wildlife crops. Next to the woods he planted Bicolor lespedeza and then next to this strip another strip of Sericea lespedeza. These border strips of wildlife plantings were put on areas which were not capable of producing large yields of shallow-rooted row crops. Mr. White is also being assisted in the application of his soil conservation practices by Linwood Davenport, his son-in-law and part-time Conservation Aide. On still another of his farm tracts of approximately two acres, Mr. White and Mr. Davenport have set out Lobolly pines on 6 foot squares. This tract was considered wet for crop use and inconvenient for pasture; it was therefore converted to woodland. Mr. White and Mr. Davenport say they plan to put each acre to its best use and treat it according to its needs.

T. C. Byrum has planted Lobolly pines on his X-roads farm. On this farm Mr. Byrum had a couple of acres which were lying on a 2-5% slope and eroding badly. He decided that these two acres should not have been cleared anyway, so he returned it to woodland use.

The Lobolly pine seedlings for the Byrum and White farms were furnished by the Soil Conservation Service. R. C. Jordan, local representative of the Soil Conservation Service suggests that the same measures might be employed on many other Chowan County farms—not only for erosion control but as good land-use measures.

Miss Pencie Harrell Bride Of Walter Bond

Miss Pencie Harrell, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Harrell, of the Rocky Hock community, and Walter Bond, son of Mrs. E. W. Bond and the late Mr. Bond of Edenton, were united in marriage Friday, April 30, at the home of the bride's brother, I. L. Harrell, at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon. The Rev. W. L. Freeman, pastor of the Edenton Methodist Church, officiated.

Miss Beulah Evans, pianist, rendered the wedding music. The bride and bridegroom entered the room together. The room was decorated with palms and seven branch candelabra interspersed with tall baskets of white flowers.

The bride wore a powder blue dress with fitted bodice and ballerina skirt. Her elbow length gloves and hat were of shell pink. She wore a corsage of pink roses and valley lilies.

Immediately following the ceremony, an informal reception was given for the immediate families and friends of the bride and bridegroom.

For going away the bride changed to a navy blue dress and beige coat with navy accessories.

Following the return of a wedding trip, the newlyweds are residing on East King Street.
