

Colored School Gave $28.01 In Cancer Drive

Mrs. Nathan Dail, treasurer of the Chowan County cancer drive, reported this week that $1.38 more had been received from Mrs. Viola Beasley. In the report of canvassers appearing in The Herald last week recognition of the Edenton colored school was inadvertently omitted. Prof. D. F. Walker was in charge of the drive at the school, as the result of which $28.01 was collected and turned over to Mrs. Ralph Parrish, commander of the drive. The credit was included in Mrs. Dail's report but was overlooked by The Herald's editor when writing the story.

Farmers Devoting Time And Effort To Improve Land

Bob Hollowell Develops Waste Area Into Plot "Fit For Picture"

The application of soil and water conservation practices as planned in their soil conservation farm plans have consumed the effort and time of quite a number of Chowan's farmers in recent months. Among the practices used for the conservation of water and soil is that of permanent pasture improvement. Bob Hollowell, farmer of the Cross Roads area, and member of the Chowan County Board of Soil Conservation Supervisors, began working at the improvement of his permanent pasture last fall. His old pasture had become depleted of recommended species of fertility and infested with a weed pest which he called "hound tongue." His first step in his improvement procedure was to break the land with a disc tiller. The land was allowed to settle for a few weeks, after which it was limed and fertilized. Applications of 4,000 pounds of lime, 1,500 pounds of superphosphate and 30 tons of stable manure were made to the three-acre plot. These applications were thoroughly disced into the soil. Upon waiting for the seedbed to settle, Mr. Hollowell seeded it with a mixture of Kentucky 31 Fescue, white and Ladino clover. Annual lespedeza was seeded on top this spring. Mr. Hollowell has watched this pasture grow and now considers it a fit subject for a picture. He has requested R. C. Jordan, Chowan County Soil Conservationist, to make a picture of it. According to Mr. Hollowell, several of his neighbor farmers have pronounced it "about the best possible they ever saw." Mr. Jordan states that Mr. Hollowell is the first farmer in Chowan County to use the Kentucky 31 Fescue-Ladino clover seed mixture. The Kentucky Fescue seed were procured from Bertram Hollowell, who grew a seed-increase plot last year in cooperation with the Soil Conservation Service. He, too, has seeded this green-all-the-year grass into his Dallas grass-white clover-lespedeza pasture on the Center Hill road.

Still other farmers have been busy at the task of pasture improvement. H. T. Hobbs is now grazing his cows on an acre of permanent pasture which, until a year ago, was a briar and weed patch. Willie Twine and Elijah Boyce are in the process of establishing permanent pasture areas for their family cows. T. C. Byrum has 18 white-faced Hereford cows on 12 1/2 acres of pasture which he has recently completed seeding. Mr. Byrum is using Dallis grass, annual lespedeza, orchard grass and white clover for his grazing mixture. For his hogs he supplies annual grazing mixtures of lespedeza and Dallis grass. - Eli T. Byrum of the Rocky Hook area plans to have a place to graze his hogs next year. Since his soil is a deep loamy sand, he will have to resort to the use of deeper rooted crops. He will use Sericea lespedeza. T. Stillman Leary plans to seed a hog pasture to this crop also.

According to Mr. Jordan, pastures such as these farmers are using conform to good land-use practices.
