

Traffic Violations Cost 977 Motorists Licenses In March

Drunken Driving Tops List With 555 Revocations

With revocations for drunken driving topping the list, 977 motorists lost their drivers' licenses during March as a result of traffic violations, the Motor Vehicle Department announced today.

Of this number, 758 were revocations and 219 were suspensions.

Drunken driving accounted for 555 revocations, bringing to 1,752 the number of drivers losing their licenses in 1949 to date from this cause. The March total was 274 under the number for last March, when 829 persons lost their licenses for drunken driving.

Forty-four motorists lost their license during the month for driving drunk out of State, 52 for driving drunk and miscellaneous, 29 for driving after license revoked, 20 for reckless driving and miscellaneous, 21 for speeding over 75 miles per hour and miscellaneous, four for larceny of automobile, one for manslaughter, 18 for transporting liquor, 19 for two offenses of speeding over 55 miles per hour, and 72 for failure to maintain proof of financial responsibility.

In addition, 529 drivers were convicted of reckless driving, which required no revocation or suspension on the first offense.

A total of 6,398 persons were convicted of moving violations which do not constitute revocation or suspension for the first offense. Leading in this type of violation was speeding, with 2,135 offenders. Other violations included: failing to have driver's license, 1,260; faulty equipment on vehicle, 371; improper lights, 154; running through red light, 282; miscellaneous traffic violations, 109; failing to stop at intersection, 63; passing school bus, 57; failing to dim lights, 54; parking on highway without lights, 13; leaving car on highway unattended, 16; driving on wrong side of road, 55.

Of the total number of persons convicted of moving violations, 4,718 were North Carolinians, and the remaining 1,680 were out-of-state drivers.

Driver Examination Continues In Effect

Despite information to the contrary, the program calling for re-examination of drivers in North Carolina is continuing in force, Major Sam L. Gaynor, assistant director of the Division of Highway Safety of the Department of Motor Vehicles, points out.

"Some drivers in the State are under the impression that a bill is pending in the General Assembly doing away with the re-examination of drivers," Major Gaynor said. "Consequently re-examination in the Raleigh area has dropped off 50 per cent. Comparable conditions are beheved to exist throughout the State," Stating that the bill calling for re-examination statute has been killed, Major Gaynor reminded motorists whose surnames begin with H, I, J or K that they must stand examinations for drivers' licenses before June 30.

License examination stations are located in every county throughout the State.
