Unemployment In State For First Six Months Leads 1948

72,824 Workers Laid Off First Six Months In 1949

Almost three times as much was paid to unemployed eligible workers in North Carolina in the first half of 1949 than was paid in the first six months of 1948 in the regular (UC) program of the Employment Security Commission of North Carolina, it is revealed by ESC Chairman Henry E. Kendall.

Under this program unemployed workers received $9,048,137 in benefits in compensation for 714,859 weeks (or part weeks) of unemployment, in the January-June period of 1949, in contrast to the $3,104,133 in benefits, compensation for 293,701 weeks of unemployment, during the first six months of 1948. In fact, for the entire year of 1948, benefits amounted to only $6,849,783 for 614,523 weeks of unemployment, against slightly more than $9,000,000 for almost 715,000 weeks of unemployment in the past six months.

Under the Servicemen's Readjustment Allowance (SRA) program in the first half of 1949, eligible veterans drew $6,235,007 for 313,830 weeks of unemployment, as compared with allowances of $4,551,305 for 313,830 weeks of unemployment during the first six months of 1948. During the entire year of 1948 veterans drew $7,505,432 under the SRA program for 378,036 weeks of unemployment.

At the end of June, 1949, it was found that 42,506 claimants in the UC program were filing claims for unemployment compensation against 17,013 at the end of June, 1948, and 20,552 at the end of December, 1948.

In the SRA program at the end of June, 1949, 14,699 veterans were filing claims for allowances, against 7,060 at the end of June, 1948, and 7,427 at the end of December, 1948.

Indicative of the number of eligible workers laid off in the first six months of 1949, it is shown that 72,824 received their first payments during that period in the regular UC program, as against 30,621 in the first half of 1948 and 65,224 in the last six months of 1948. In the first half of 1949, 10,616 veterans received their first unemployment payments under the SRA program, against 10,159 in the first half of 1948 and 16,072 in the last half of 1948.

Opposes Single Military Set-Up

The merger of the three military departments into a single department will lead this country to the "Prussian military system," in the opinion of Ferdinand Eberstadt, former chairman of the Special Committee of the Hoover Commission.

The matter is up for consideration again because President Truman recommended to Congress the establishment of a Department of Defense, with authority over all the armed services and the consequent status of the Departments of Army, Navy and Air Force.

The Hoover Commission, in its recommendation, did not advocate such a radical change in the military establishment, set up two years ago with three semi-autonomous departments acting under the "general" authority of a Secretary of Defense.

The President's recommendation is included in a military reorganization bill, already passed by the Senate, which would reduce from "Secretary" to "Under-Secretary," the civilian chief of each of the services. Mr. Hoover recently testified against the creation of a single chief of staff and Mr. Eberstadt took the same view, maintaining that a single department would result in a single chief of staff, which, he thought, would be "dangerous" to the country.

Byrnes and Baruch Criticize H.S.T. In recent public addresses, former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes and retired industrialist, Bernard M. Baruch, both natives of South Carolina, have delivered vigorous, if indirect, criticism of the present Administration.

Mr. Byrnes warned against the welfare state and Mr. Baruch reported a lack of a plan of "total mobilization," which, he asserted, represents a "needless invitation to disaster."

President Truman has made no direct reply to either statement but White House circles, according to The New York Times, "exhibited considerable indignation" over the Baruch charge and intimated that Mr. Baruch was badly informed. This statement was subsequently attributed directly to the President, who categorically denied that any mobilization plan had been presented to him or rejected by him. In reply, the industrialist suggested that the President examine the White House files and recalled that such a plan was submitted to the President in May or June, of 1948.

It is generally known that Messrs.

Byrnes and Baruch have been closely associated and the political experts wonder if there is any connection between the timing of the two addresses. Do they indicate the beginning of a more audible opposition to President Truman's "Fair Deal" on domestic affairs and his handling of the nation's security in connection with international affairs?

Three-way Test on Brannan Plan

The nation will see a three-commodity trial of the controversial Brannan production-payment plan if the House Agriculture Committee has its way.

Representative Stephen Pace, of Georgia, explaining the plan, said that the Committee had been unable to get cost estimates of production payments, as proposed by Secretary

Brannan, but he could not foresee administrative difficulties which may prove insurmountable and he was sure that consumers would get the benefits envisaged in the plan.

Time past and time present, both may pain us, but time improved is eloquent in God's praise.—Mary Baker Eddy.
