Important That Tests Of Soil Are Made By Farmers

Now Is Very Appropriate Time, Says County Agent Overman

Soil testing is the only means by which farmers can determine the lime needs and other plant food needs of their soil, says C. W. Overman, County Agent. Liming fields without a soil test is haphazard and often time results in unnecessary expense.

"This is the season of the year when farmers have time to take soil samples of their fields, send them in to the State Department of Agriculture for analyzation, get back the reports and apply the lime needed," says Mr. Overman. "Dolomitic lime is usually recommended by the Soil Testing Laboratory because it contains approximately one-half calcium oxide and one-half magnesium oxide and we find that magnesium is needed on a large percentage of our soil. Shell lime contains calcium oxide only.

"Soil containers and field history sheets may be obtained free of charge at your County Agent's office, from your Vocational Agricultural teacher or from Soil Conservationist. The only cost to the farmer is the small amount of postage necessary for mailing the samples. On the back of the field history sheets is complete instructions for taking soil samples, also anyone of your agricultural agencies will be glad to explain the proper method of taking samples."

'A summary of the soil tests made from Chowan County soils during the period July 1, 1947 to June 30, 1948, showed that 30% of these soils were low to very low in calcium, 17% low to very low in potash. On the other hand, 70% of the soils were medium to high in calcium, 83% were medium to high in magnesium, 72% were medium to high in phosphorous and 35% were medium to high in potash. These figures indicate that quite a number of fields show a need for lime, yet not all of them by any means. In general we are running low in potash and this element particularly needs to be increased for cotton and peanuts.

Dolomitic lime should be applied at least 60 days or more before the crop Executors of Estate of Z. T. Evans Dolomitic lime should be applied at is planted, the sooner the better. Overman urges farmers to utilize some of their time during this slack period in taking soil samples and having their soil analyzed so that they will not be liming and fertilizing in the dark.

occupied last week in completing tion for the statutory period of two some unfinished business. Such busibefore the holidays. Another problem which faced the Seniors earlier was the selection of their class pin and class invitations. The class chose to have pins to match their rings. The invitations are yet to be selected.

The Senior Class sponsored a T-Dance at the Armory after the High School vs. Faculty basketball game last Thursday night. In the future more of these dances will be sponsored and they will be properly chaperoned. This week you must step aboard the airship journeying to Senior Wonderland. Among the group of determined students are two that are the most outstanding.

The first is a girl that has been quite occupied with the Senior project. She is circulation manager of the "Edentonian" which is a project that takes plenty of knowledge to fulfill.

She is a reporter on the Spotlight staff. Besides this she is secretary of the Glee Club, and a member of the French Club. This year we notice that this girl was chosen the "most friendly" in the class; who is she—Frances

Brown, of course Morris Small is the most outstand ing boy among the group in Senior Wonderland. When Senior superlatives were voted on Morris won as the "best-all around."

This student is one of the bus drivers, in fact, last year he was chosen the most outstanding bus driver Morris is well liked by both the faculty and his class-mates.

Can you guess who'll be the mos outstanding the next time?
